Council backs tough policy on speeding

The city Council expressed support Monday night for the city's get tough policy on speeding. The support came during a special meeting called to discuss and alley paving project being opposed by area property owners.

Speeding policy

For the past several months, Sikeston public safety officers have been using radar extensively to monitor traffic speeds throughout the city. The number of speeding arrests have soared as a result.

The topic has become the subject of coffee table discussions in town and recently one man, arrested more than once for speeding, protested, saying he heard tickets are being handed out for speeds only two miles per hour over the speed limit.

Not so, City Manager Charles Church said. A check of the tickets in question showed they were for speeds seven to 10 miles an hour above the speed limit, he said.

Church said the city is not trying to pay its bills with speeding fines.

The strict traffic enforcement is "for our own good," he said, pointing out that it has resulted in a 14 per cent decrease in traffic accidnts in the first eight months of the year.

In the past, officers were reluctant to issue speeding tickets and the department often operated on a don't rock the boat prinicpal, as far as speeding tickets were concerned, Church said.

A new policy has been put into effect, allowing officers to use radar more often and to decide where to monitor traffic based on traffic flow and accident rates, he said.

Council woman Mary Doggett said she has heard some complaints about inconsistancies issuing tickets to those involved in traffic accidents.

Church explained that someone must witness the accident before blame can be assigned. Otherwise the officer has only the word of those involved.

Sikeston man is stabbed in argument

A 62-year-old Sikeston man was stabbed several times about 10 p.m. Monday during an argument at his home, according to the Public Safety Department.

The man, identified as Howard Cline, 62, of 128 Rueben St., was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, but reportedly checked himself out during the night.

Public Safety Director Kenneth Francis said officers responded to the home after receiving a report of a man calling for help.

When the officers arrived, they found Cline stabbed several times and a 48-year-old woman hiding in the bedroom with a butcher knife in her hands.

Francis said the woman identified herself as Cline's wife, but that there is some doubt to her relationship with Cline.

Both were highly intoxicated, Francis said.

Cline is confined to a wheelchair. He told officers that the woman had shot him before and the wound had confined him to the wheelchair, Francis said.

No charges had been filed as of this morning, Francis said.

Burlison to speak at Democratic dinner

DEXTER — Final plans are being made for the Democratic Dinner to be held Saturday night at the community room of Security Federal Savings & Loan in Dexter. The dinner will begin at 7 p.m.

The Keynote speaker will be 10th District U.S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison. Other leading Democratic officials and office-holders will also be in attendance.

The presentation of the 1977 Harry S Truman Award will be the highlight of the dinner. The recipient was elected by secret ballot on Sept. 22, by the Stoddard County Democratic Dommittee, sponsors of the dinner.

Tickets for the dinner are still available from Committee members and County officials for $7.50 each of $15 a couple. All Democrats are invited, and tickets will be available at the door.

Miner judge, marshal and deputy quit

Three resignations were handed to the Miner Board of Trustees Monday night during an unofficial meeting, according to Mayor L.F. Wheeler.

Milton Sadler resigned as both a trustee and police court judge. George Hart resigned as marshal and Carl Ragland resigned as deputy marshal.

None of the three gave reasons for their resignations, Wheeler said.

Saddler's resignation follows a court injunction ordering him to stop serving as both trustee and judge. The court ruled there is no separation of powers when a trustee serves as judge.

Wheeler said the board will meet tonight to appoint someone to fill Sadler's term until the April election.

The board must also appoint a new police judge and hire two new police officers.

Wheeler said he hoped the town's unpaid parttime deputies would provide protection until new full time officers are hire.

Compromise may end consumer rights fight

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The staff of the Missouri Public Service Commission and utility officials have proposed a compromise on the "utility consumer bill of rights."

The compromise, if adopted, would end a 22-month court battle that has stymied implementation of the uniform billing and service standards for all regulate natural gas, electric and water companies.

The commission is expected to consider the proposal this week. State Public Counsel William Barvick said the propsal calls for concessions by both utilities and the state.

Elimination of the complete ban on penalty charges for late payment of bills, an investigation into the validity of customer security deposits and 21 days for customers to pay their bills are among the major provisions, Barvick said.

Concerns about some provisions of the compromise have been raised by both sides in the dispute, Barvick said. But the man who represents consumers before the PSC said he understood the utilities would drop their court opposition to the uniform standards if the compromise is adopted.

"Overall, it's the kind of thing that we're all unhappy with the result, but that may mean it's a good result," said Barvick, who is undecided on the compromise.

"We've come a long way and we've got a lot here and I don't want to blow the whole thing," he added. "But on the other hand, I don't want to give up something important just to settle it (the court case)."

While questioning some provisions of the proposal Barvick acknowledged that waiting for the court to resolve the challenge to original stricter standards would mean a delay of another two years in their implementation.

"We'll get something into effect two years earlier and it's obvious that it's bettern than we have now," he said.

If the compromise is adopted by the commission, utilities would have six months to comply with the standards or seek a waiver from the commission. Because of state laws regulating adoption of administrative rules, the compromise will probably not be formally adopted until late this year, meannng the utilities would have until late next spring to comply.

The original standards were adopted by the PSC in December 1975 and would have gone into effect in late June 1976. But 13 utilities won a court order in early 1976. They contended the procedures invaded their right to manage their companies.

The commission originally banned any penalty charge for customers who pay bills late, but the compromise permits penalties now being assessed to be collected until the utility seeks increased rates from the commission. At that time, the utility will have to drop the penalty or prove that it is

Farmington man seriously hurt in crash

A Farmington man was seriously injured and three other persons received lesser injuries in two traffic accidents on area roads Monday, according to the highway patrol.

A two-vehicle accident at 4:35 p.m. Monday on Highway 25, six miles south of Advance, resulted in serious injuries to Darrell Green, 37, of Farmington, who was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Baptist Memorial Hospital at Memphis, Tenn.

The accident occurred when the left front tire of a southbound tractor-trailer truck, driven by Gerald Edward Lee, 27, of Marble Hill, blew out, causing the truck to swerve across the highway and strike the northbound pickup truck of Green.

Lee was cited for failure to drive on the right half of the highway.

Edith H. Eilers, 74, driver of an eastbound car, a passenger in the car, Ollie Badgett, 94, of Ironton Star Route, and a pedestrian, John Myracle, 20, of Arcadia, sustained injuries in an accident at 10:20 a.m. Monday on Route W, two miles west of Route V in St. Francis County.

The patrol said the Eilers woman stopped her car on the roadway, suddenly accelerated and swerved off the road into a ditch. The car struck Myracle, knocking him into a fence. The car continued through the fence and struck the rear of a pickup truck parked in a field.

The women sustained possible back injuries and Myracle suffered a fractured finger on his right hand and lacerations to the face and hand. All were taken to Farmington State Hospital.

Carter plan may cut taxes $22 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's tax revision plan could reduce taxes by up to $22 billion, says Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, and may go into effect in 1978, a year earlier than originally planned.

Blumenthal, emerging from a meeting with Carter and senior economic advisers on Monday, left open the possibility that the administration might try to put the plan into effect next year, depending on the direction the economy follows.

But, walking out of the Cabinet Room meeting that lasted nearly five hours, the treasury secretary insisted no final decisions had been made.

His confirmation that the administration was considering tax cuts that could reach $22 billion was the first on-therecord administration comment on the possible size of the reduction.

The $22 billion figure is "indeed one of the options, but it is not necessarily the number" that will be settled on, he said.

"We just went over the entire program and the President has not made up his mind on any of the options," the treasury secretary said.

Administration sources had said earlier that the tax cut would be in the range of $17 billion to $20 billion, although some reports had placed it as high as $22 billion.

The sources have forecast that one-third of the tax cut would be for businesses and two-thirds for individuals.

The sources have said the tax cut would be introduced in 1979, although it would be phased in over several years. But Blumenthal said the timetable for putting the tax cut into effect remained undecided and that decisions on any tax cut in 1978 would depend on the state of the economy.

He said further meetings were planned and that it was likely Carter would send the plan to Congress by the end of the month.

Farmer's Almanac predicts Moderate winter in Missouri

BY SUE ELLEN PAYNE

We've begun football season, enjoyed the magistry of Cotton Carnival and have just begun to watch the evening blazes in our fireplaces. With winter coming, a lot of us are wondering what to expect this year from Old Jack Frost.

The familiar yellow-bound, Old Farmer's Almanac, this year the 186th edition, has recently been seen on the newsstands again. It is not only filled with winter forecasts from "Abe Weatherwise", but also a record 15 feature articles, along with general information for those loyal almanac readers.

Besides the records of holidays, Holy Days, eclipses, chill tables and best fishing days for 1978, you will learn that during the coming year, the earth will travel 584,000,000 miles in an orbit around the sun. It will take 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds. A hundred years from now, the same trip will take one second less.

Also included in the 192-page guide are rainy day amusements, and recipes for delicious things like slumps, grunts, buckles and duffs, a collection of old fashioned puddings with old fashioned names.

As for the weather summary for Missouri, located under weather for the Central Great Plains, "Watch for a mild November and moderate winter season with considerable snow and rain, except in February, through the first part of March. The latter part of March warms up fast, but April through June remains cool with adequate spring rain. Summer will be hotter than usual and dry the latter part, and October cold and rainy."

Average temperature for the period of November through February will be 39 degrees. Precipitation for this same four-month period will reach 7.5 inches.

Another year, another prediction that the Almanac sticks it neck out on, but honestly, is there anyone else who does?

Compromise may end consumer rights fight

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The staff of the Missouri Public Service Commission and utility officials have proposed a compromise on the "utility consumer bill of rights."

The compromise, if adopted, would end a 22-month court battle that has stymied implementation of the uniform billing and service standards for all regulate natural gas, electric and water companies.

The commission is expected to consider the proposal this week. State Public Counsel William Barvick said the propsal calls for concessions by both utilities and the state.

FREEDOM (BECAUSE) OF THE PRESS

It's the year 2084 A.D.

Orwell was just 100 years late with his prediction.

Freedom of the press is a thing of the past. The "press" is obsolete. All news is transmitted electronically.

Fiction? Hardly. Speakers at 1977 newspaper association meetings talk about SEEFAX, TELETEXT.

News and information in the future will be transmitted via satellite and telephone wires, they tell us.

If those processes eliminate the printed page during the next 100 years, the Federal Communications Commission will license all news media.

We need to remind ourselves during this National Newespaper Week that the printed page is the only unlicensed "free press" we have left in this country.

If by the year 2084 A.D., our printing processes and distribution methods are obsolete, those who want to license, regulate and control the press will have their way. Orwell predicted it, and we thought it was fiction.

Chilling thought isn't it?

CURBING MEDICAL FRAUD

After much mumbling and grumbling, Congress now seems ready to crack down on doctors, druggists, nursing homes and testing laboratories that cheat Medicare and Medicaid out of hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

The House has approved stiff new penalties for Medicare and Medicaid fraud. Instead of a year in prison and a $10,000 fine, cheaters could be sent to prison for up to five years and fined as much as $25,000 under the proposed new law.

The Senate Finance Committee has approved a similar bill, and President Carter is expected to sign the legislation when it comes to his desk.

Congress had talked about stiffer penalties for medical fraud last fall, but the bill, proposed by Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., got lost in the shuffle during the heat of the election campaign.

No one knows exactly how much cheating goes on in government health program, but the combination of fraud and waste is estimated at somewhere between $3 billion and $4 billion a year, or about 10 per cent of the total amount spent.

Some doctors have been padding their fees or charging for treatment never delivered. Others have been "ping-ponging" patients from doctor to doctor or taking kick-backs from testing labs eager for Medicaid business.

A first step toward correcting these abuses was the appointment this year of a new inspector general to root out health care fraud. Now the law is being stiffened to discourage cheating by making sure we have penalties that more nearly fit the crime.

PROFESSIONALS AT WORK

A frequent complaint of the police is that they often arrest a lawbreaker for a crime, only to have the case thrown out of court for one reason or another.

The complaint is backed up by a government-financed study.

Examining police records in Washington, D.C., the Institute for Law and Social Research found that fewer than 30 per cent of the arrests for serious crime in that city in 1974 led to convictions. Studies in other large cities have produced similar findings, it says.

At the same time, however, the researchers discovered that some cops consistently scored high in making arrests that stuck. Specifically, of the 2,418 Washington officers who made arrests in 1974, only 15 per cent of them made half of the arrests which resulted in convictions.

The institute doesn't know why a few officers produce most of the convictable arrests, but suggests that police departments might want to reward those who do with more rapid promotion, bonus pay or special recognition, and thereby encourage all officers to S"look beyond arrest."

It probably can be summed up in one word: professionalism.

MEMBERS IN GOOD STANDING

Between 1960 and 1976, the FBI paid nearly $1.7 million to 301 people to become members of and report on the Socialist Workers Party and its youth affiliate, the Young Socialist Alliance.

The bureau was forced to make the disclosure in "discovery proceedings" arising out of the party's multimillion-dollar damage suit against it.

Since the SWP and YSA have never had a combined membership of much more than their present 2,500, these 301 FBI informers represented 12 per cent of the two organizations' total strength and, one can surmise, must have provided a similar percentage of their operating budgets—courtesy of the U.S. taxpayer.

Just to be safe, the FBI also paid 1,000 other people who did not join but who also reported on the party, although it is not revealed what their total payments were.

All told, the FBI had the Socialist Workers Party under active surveillance for 38 years, from 1938 to 1976, without discovering a single instance of criminal or treasonable activity—which suggests that never in the course of human nincompoopery have so many been paid so much to spy so long on so few for so little purpose.

'The New Breed' Of Ministers

THE TRADITION of going to a physician or minister with personal problems goes back, no doubt, to prehistoric times when science and religion were yet to be discovered beneath the surface of magic.

Even in fairly recent times, not a little of what now seems like magic went into the advice that was dispensed with fatherly bedside manners and pastoral solemnity. If the advice was simplistic or too otherworldly, at least the problems may have been more manageable by credo, sugar pills or a pat on the hand.

But the effectiveness of this kind of counseling has been increasingly limited by the complexities of modern life. The article in The Commercial Appeal's Viewpoint on the American family showed how changing attitudes have made it more difficult for individuals to deal with personal and interpersonal problems. Family life, in particular, has been shaken up by new pressures and thye search for new values.

Counseling has become a specialized field. It requires training that hasn't been part of the traditional education for physicians or ministers. It also requires much more time than can be squeezed into office visits and church business.

Two Memphis ministers, Rev. Brooks Ramsey and Rev. Daly Thompson, recognized this fact when they opened the Center for Personal Growth here four years ago. The center expanded recently with the addition of another minister, Rev. Ernest Mellor. Four satellite offices will be operated in local churches besides the main office at 3550 Central.

Religion editor Michael Clark, in The Commercial Appeal's Church Bazaar column described the three ministers as members of "a new breed -- the pastoral counselor, the Christian psychotherapist." All have taken advanced courses in counseling and plan to continue that education.

The three aren't alone in Memphis. A number of ministers, including those who counsel students at local colleges and universities, have specialized in this growing field of pastoral work.

The response of the clergy to try to meet the changing needs of people in trouble is encouraging. But it also emphasizes how important it is for ministers who take on heavy counseling duties to get as much additional education in the field as theyy can and to recognize that counseling as a part-time practice is often an inadequate response.

EXTRA PROTECTION FOR ESTATES

When a lawyer absconds with funds from an estate, the negative impact hits on at least two fronts. The survivors are victimized by the loss of money and perhaps other assets. And, even though a single lawyer is involved, the crime reflects badly on an entire profession.

Concern on this issue was articulated recently by John R. Gibson, a Kansas City lawyer who currently is president-elect of the Missouri Bar. In a speech at the Missouri Judicial Conference in St. Louis, Gibson mentioned this problem as one of several that will be addressed during his term as bar president. He is to assume his new position late in September.

Right now the Missouri Bar has a client security fund that is financed from dues paid by lawyers in the state. Gibson, however, envisions something more. Several methods to cover or prevent losses are being disucssed.

One is the bonding of lawyers as a requirement to practice law in Missouri. Another is the auditing of trust fund accounts of which lawyers are in charge. Some states use this latter arrangement.

The ofjective is to protect clients who must rely on lawyers to handle affairs that are often complicated and that require professional legal services. Lay persons can be vulnerable in these circumstances. The honesty and integrity of lawyers are necessary.

Added protection is needed, however, when unscrupulous lawyers fail to meet the ethics standards of their profession and break the law. Many lawyers are bothered by the adverse effect these thefts have. Undoubtedly there is substantial public support, as well as within the legal profession, for a better system.

HINDSIGHT AGAIN BETTER

As usual, hindsight is proving to be better than foresight.

The Alaska oil has started flowing toward the Lower States, but it will end up in California, where there are not enough refineries to put it into usable commercial form. The result will be a surplus of crude oil in the Pacific Slope states, and a continuing shortage in the Midwest and East, without imported oil.

Now the Monday morning quarterbacks say the Alaska pipeline should have been built through Canada to the Midwest and its vast system of refineries, so it would be where it can be refined and quickly used.

They say that line would have been vastly cheaper, and easier to maintain. They also claim that it was built where it is because the California oil moguls and their friend, President Nixon, wanted it to end up in California.

Whatever is the truth, the new oil will mean no lowering of prices, chiefly because of the cost of producing and transporting it.

ABOUT 'TAXFLATION'

How are personal taxes affected by inflation?

To answer a question with a question, when was the last time you saw a newspaper story entitled: "Congress Raises Income Taxes?" In fact, the federal budget has doubled in the past 15 years with out a single permanent tax boost voted into law. At the same time, legislators have been able to vote for five "tax cuts" during this period, knowing full well that Tax revenues would still keep pace with their increased spending — almost!

The problem is caused by "taxflation." Under a graduated income tax, people with higher earnings pay higher tax rates. Because of inflation, incomes must rise to maintain purchasing power. But this artificial wage increase forces the taxpayer into a higher tax bracket, so his income is taxed at a higher rate. For example, a family of four now earning $20,000 a year pays 15 per cent of their income in federal income taxes. With an inflation rate of 7 per cent a year, by 1987, they will have to earn $40,000 a year just to keep up with the rising cost of living. However, they will have moved up into a higher tax bracket and will pay 25 per cent of their income in taxes. By merely keeping pace with rising costs, their standard of living will decline. What's more, an additional increase in income to compensate for the higher taxes may drive the family into a still higher tax bracket.

Property taxes are forced up by inflation as well. As inflation rises, property values rise as well. Local governments reappraise the value of homes and farms and the tax liability on the property increases. This hurts everyone who owns property, but is especially hard on retired people living on fixed income.

The difficulty is not that no one knows how to curb an inflation. All, or almost all, experts would agree that a sufficient tightening of government fiscal and monetary policies would end even a severe inflation, perhaps not immediately but in due time. Large government deficits and rapid expansion of the money supply are the fuel which feeds the inflationary fires. Stop supplying the fuel and the fire (inflation) will go out.

Obviously, firm action to end inflation will take a lot of courage on the part of government and a lot of understanding in the private sector But it is time the American people faced it, and then make public officials and politicians face it, too.

A GARDEN SALUTE

Well, Mary, it probably grows quite well if you happen to live in Marshall or Saline County. Yes, this has been a good year for gardens in our area and we are proud for all amateur and professional" gardeners who have reaped the fruit of their labor.

Yes, these are expecially great days for those who take particular pride in their tomatoes. To them this fruit is ample reward for the long hours of labor expended in preparing the soil, nursing the young plants, cultivating, weeding and dusting for lo, these many weeks.

It seems as if the first tomato is always served as a special treat with each member of the family getting an equal share.

It's true gardeners differ other than the fact some are called Mary and others Paul — but one particular type loves the work, and prefers no part of the products of his toil. That is left to others of the household. His tomatoes are raised from seeds, and his excess seedlings are gifts cherished by friends who share his hobby. But oddly enough when the vines produce their fruit, he will have none of it.

On the other hand, some amateur gardeners lose their enthusiasm. We remind them of the saying that a man should never plant a garden too big for his wife to care for.

And if that gets us in trouble with Mary, we're sorry for being so contrary. Anyhow, all the gardens looked good.

And the fruit of the Laborer has been good too. —The (Marshall) Democrat News

THE PERFECT ASSIST

Last spring a yong sophomore at the University of Pennsylvania was returning home from a sporting banquet, He had just been awarded his letter for participating on the fencing team. In addition he had received a new fencing foil.

The young man was riding a fairly crowded car on the elevated train which crosses Philadelphia. When the train stopped at one downtown station, three burly youths wielding heavy pipes entered the car. they were swinging the pipes as one of them nudged an elderly lady, and attempted to pull her purse from her. She put up a struggle, but the fear was evident on her face.

Without considering the odds, the young fencer dashed down the aisle in perfect form. One hand was poised in the air, the other brandished his newly acquired foil. With his fancy footwork and foil-twirling, and encouragement form an elderly man who was yelling "Get em with your sword!" he forced three surprised hoodlums to back out of the car.

The amazed woman offered to pay him for his kindness. He smiled, bowed low and said, "This Madame, is my reward." Then he kissed her hand and returned to his seat, where he affectionately replaced his foil in its shealth. Chivalry is not dead in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bobby Baker: Nixon Men Wanted Dirt on Democrats

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON - Bobby Baker, the bright-eyed Senate wheeler-dealer whose financial finagling became an embarrassment to Lyndon Johnson, was once asked by Richard Nixon's henchmen for some dirt on the Democrats.

The details are contained in an anecdote-packed book, tentatively titled "Child of the Senate," that Baker is writing about his controversial career in and out of government. Although the manuscript, 14 years in the making, is still in draft form, we have learned it will contain new revelations about Johnson and Nixon, as well as John Kennedy, Dwight Eisenhower, John Connally, Bebe Rebozo, Abe Fortas, Clark Clifford and Robert Vesco.

Shortly before the 1972 presidential election, Baker relates, Nixon's closest crony, Bebe Rebozo, asked Baker if he had any derogatory information on Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

Baker conceded to Rebozo in a private meeting that he wasn't too fond of the Democratic candidate, Sen. George McGovern, D.-S.D. But he told Rebozo that he didn't know of any scandalous material on O'Brien.

Undaunted, Rebozo reportedly pressed Baker for embarrassing information on other leading Democrats. The peppy Baker was only able to suggest some minor violations that Rebozo wasn't interested in.

Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, also is said to have pressed Baker for derogatory information on O'Brien, the book says. The Nixon forces were preoccupied with O'Brien, Baker says, because they feared he could link Nixon to embarrassing incidents involving billionaire recluse Howard Hughes.

In another chapter, Baker describes how he asked Johnson, once he was out of office, to help him out of his legal difficulties with the federal government. At Baker's urging, LBJ allegedly asked former Texas Gov. John Connally to intervene with President Nixon on Baker's behalf.

Johnson reportedly felt that Baker, who already had been convicted of theft and income tax evason, was the target of a political vendetta. At LBJ's request, Connally allegedly asked Nixon to grant a pardon to Baker.

Nixon, says Baker, rejected the idea. Baker now says he was not interested in any pardon because it would have been an admission of wrongdoing.

Another time, President Nixon called Johnson to tell him coyly he was naming LBJ'S old friend, John Connally, as Secretary of the Treasury. Instead of being pleased, Johnson was angry because neither Nixon nor Connally had cleared it with him. LBJ's longtime friend Liz Carpenter confirmed to us that Johnson "was slightly hurt" because Nixon called him only five minutes before making the official announcement.

Footnote: We were unable to reach Kalmbach, Connally or Rebozo for comment.

Success Formula: Many hospitals are being deluged with free bottles of infant formula by the two giant corporations that dominate the market.

Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs, which sell about 85 percent of all infant formula in the United States, have been sending truckloads of free samples to the nation's larger hospitals to influence new mothers. Admitted a Bristol-Myers spokesman: "Obviously mothers are impressed with a product they receive from a hospital."

But the hospitals are getting so much free formula that they have had to rotate between each company's freebies. So the firms' promotion men, who visit hospitals as often as once a week, have had to offer other inducements, such as free architectural consulting work, symposiums and speakers.

Spokesmen for both firms told our reporter, Warren Fiske, that their promotion practices are a "public service." But they refused to tell us how much they spend on promotion or what other inducements they offer.

Two years ago, however, a small company named Baker Beechnut sued the two corporations for unfair competition and antitrust violations. Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs settled the suit by paying large sums to their tiny rival.

Hidden Profits: The Federal Trade Commission is quietly trying to crack the corporate wall of secrecy that hides the real profits of many conglomerates.

Our sources say that 98 percent of the financial data for the car rental business, for example, are shielded from federal investigators. The profits of Hertz are buried in the books of RCA; Avis is listed somewhere in ITT's files; Econo-Car figures are deep in the records of Westinghouse.

The giant corporations can cluster the profits of many subsidiaries in their bottom-line figures. General Motors' "wheeled transport category" includes not only autos but railroad cars, trucks and refrigerators. Such firms as Jif peanut butter, Pringles potato chips and Crisco cooking oil are hidden under Proctor & Gamble's "consumer products" category. The profits for Hostess pastries, meanwhile, are buried in ITT's telephone equipment category.

The FTC is trying to force the big conglomerates to disclose their profits for individual products every year.

FREEDOM (BECAUSE) OF THE PRESS

It's the year 2084 A.D.

Orwell was just 100 years late with his prediction.

Freedom of the press is a thing of the past. The "press" is obsolete. All news is transmitted electronically.

Fiction? Hardly. Speakers at 1977 newspaper association meetings talk about SEEFAX, TELETEXT.

News and information in the future will be transmitted via satellite and telephone wires, they tell us.

If those processes eliminate the printed page during the next 100 years, the Federal Communications Commission will license all news media.

We need to remind ourselves during this National Newespaper Week that the printed page is the only unlicensed "free press" we have left in this country.

If by the year 2084 A.D., our printing processes and distribution methods are obsolete, those who want to license, regulate and control the press will have their way. Orwell predicted it, and we thought it was fiction.

In a speech at the Missouri Judicial Conference in St. Louis, Gibson mentioned this problem as one of several that will be addressed during his term as bar president. He is to assume his new position late in September.

Right now the Missouri Bar has a client security fund that is financed from dues paid by lawyers in the state. Gibson, however, envisions something more. Several methods to cover or prevent losses are being disucssed.

One is the bonding of lawyers as a requirement to practice law in Missouri. Another is the auditing of trust fund accounts of which lawyers are in charge. Some states use this latter arrangement.

The ofjective is to protect clients who must rely on lawyers to handle affairs that are often complicated and that require professional legal services. Lay persons can be vulnerable in these circumstances. The honesty and integrity of lawyers are necessary.

Added protection is needed, however, when unscrupulous lawyers fail to meet the ethics standards of their profession and break the law. Many lawyers are bothered by the adverse effect these thefts have. Undoubtedly there is substantial public support, as well as within the legal profession, for a better system.

HINDSIGHT AGAIN BETTER

As usual, hindsight is proving to be better than foresight.

The Alaska oil has started flowing toward the Lower States, but it will end up in California, where there are not enough refineries to put it into usable commercial form. The result will be a surplus of crude oil in the Pacific Slope states, and a continuing shortage in the Midwest and East, without imported oil.

Now the Monday morning quarterbacks say the Alaska pipeline should have been built through Canada to the Midwest and its vast system of refineries, so it would be where it can be refined and quickly used.

They say that line would have been vastly cheaper, and easier to maintain. They also claim that it was built where it is because the California oil moguls and their friend, President Nixon, wanted it to end up in California.

Whatever is the truth, the new oil will mean no lowering of prices, chiefly because of the cost of producing and transporting it.

The servicemen's prayer group of which I was a member was visiting aborigine churches in the central mountain region of Taiwan. This involved strenous hiking over primitive trails. A young Navy lieutenant in the group who fancied himself a wit had been aiming a steady barrage of gives at our huffing and puffing, middle-aged pastor, one afternoon, the lieutenant missed his footing on a narrow bridge and landed with a howl, spread-eagled on his back in knee-deep mud. The more he struggled the more ensnared and muddy he became, much to the delight of all.

Finally as the lieutenant threw up his arms in despair, our long-suffering pastor, with an expression of pure humility, looked heavenward and said, "Thank you, Lord. You can let him up now."

ABOUT 'TAXFLATION'

How are personal taxes affected by inflation?

To answer a question with a question, when was the last time you saw a newspaper story entitled: "Congress Raises Income Taxes?" In fact, the federal budget has doubled in the past 15 years with out a single permanent tax boost voted into law. At the same time, legislators have been able to vote for five "tax cuts" during this period, knowing full well that Tax revenues would still keep pace with their increased spending — almost!

The problem is caused by "taxflation." Under a graduated income tax, people with higher earnings pay higher tax rates. Because of inflation, incomes must rise to maintain purchasing power. But this artificial wage increase forces the taxpayer into a higher tax bracket, so his income is taxed at a higher rate. For example, a family of four now earning $20,000 a year pays 15 per cent of their income in federal income taxes. With an inflation rate of 7 per cent a year, by 1987, they will have to earn $40,000 a year just to keep up with the rising cost of living. However, they will have moved up into a higher tax bracket and will pay 25 per cent of their income in taxes. By merely keeping pace with rising costs, their standard of living will decline. What's more, an additional increase in income to compensate for the higher taxes may drive the family into a still higher tax bracket.

Property taxes are forced up by inflation as well. As inflation rises, property values rise as well. Local governments reappraise the value of homes and farms and the tax liability on the property increases. This hurts everyone who owns property, but is especially hard on retired people living on fixed income.

The difficulty is not that no one knows how to curb an inflation. All, or almost all, experts would agree that a sufficient tightening of government fiscal and monetary policies would end even a severe inflation, perhaps not immediately but in due time. Large government deficits and rapid expansion of the money supply are the fuel which feeds the inflationary fires. Stop supplying the fuel and the fire (inflation) will go out.

Obviously, firm action to end inflation will take a lot of courage on the part of government and a lot of understanding in the private sector But it is time the American people faced it, and then make public officials and politicians faceit, too.

A GARDEN SALUTE

Well, Mary, it probably grows quite well if you happen to live in Marshall or Saline County. Yes, this has been a good year for gardens in our area and we are proud for all amateur and professional" gardeners who have reaped the fruit of their labor.

Yes, these are expecially great days for those who take particular pride in their tomatoes. To them this fruit is ample reward for the long hours of labor expended in preparing the soil, nursing the young plants, cultivating, weeding and dusting for lo, these many weeks.

It seems as if the first tomato is always served as a special treat with each member of the family getting an equal share.

It's true gardeners differ other than the fact some are called Mary and others Paul — but one particular type loves the work, and prefers no part of the products of his toil. That is left to others of the household. His tomatoes are raised from seeds, and his excess seedlings are gifts cherished by friends who share his hobby. But oddly enough when the vines produce their fruit, he will have none of it.

On the other hand, some amateur gardeners lose their enthusiasm. We remind them of the saying that a man should never plant a garden too big for his wife to care for.

And if that gets us in trouble with Mary, we're sorry for being so contrary. Anyhow, all the gardens looked good.

And the fruit of the Laborer has been good too. —The (Marshall) Democrat News

THE PERFECT ASSIST

Last spring a yong sophomore at the University of Pennsylvania was returning home from a sporting banquet, He had just been awarded his letter for participating on the fencing team. In addition he had received a new fencing foil.

The young man was riding a fairly crowded car on the elevated train which crosses Philadelphia. When the train stopped at one downtown station, three burly youths wielding heavy pipes entered the car. they were swinging the pipes as one of them nudged an elderly lady, and attempted to pull her purse from her. She put up a struggle, but the fear was evident on her face.

Without considering the odds, the young fencer dashed down the aisle in perfect form. One hand was poised in the air, the other brandished his newly acquired foil. With his fancy footwork and foil-twirling, and encouragement form an elderly man who was yelling "Get em with your sword!" he forced three surprised hoodlums to back out of the car.

The amazed woman offered to pay him for his kindness. He smiled, bowed low and said, "This Madame, is my reward." Then he kissed her hand and returned to his seat, where he affectionately replaced his foil in its shealth. Chivalry is not dead in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON - Bobby Baker, the bright-eyed Senate wheeler-dealer whose financial finagling became an embarrassment to Lyndon Johnson, was once asked by Richard Nixon's henchmen for some dirt on the Democrats.

The details are contained in an anecdote-packed book, tentatively titled "Child of the Senate," that Baker is writing about his controversial career in and out of government. Althouga the manuscript, 14 years in the making, is still in draft form, we have learned it will contain new revelations about Johnson and Nixon, as well as John Kennedy, Dwight Eisenhower, John Connally, Bebe Rebozo, Abe Fortas, Clark Clifford and Robert Vesco.

Shortly before the 1972 presidential election, Baker relates, Nixon's closest crony, Bebe Rebozo, asked Baker if he had any derogatory information on Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

Baker conceded to Rebozo in a private meeting that he wasn't too fond of the Democratic candidate, Sen. George McGovern, D.-S.D. But he told Rebozo that he didn't know of any scandalous material on O'Brien.

Undaunted, Rebozo reportedly pressed Baker for embarrassing information on other leading Democrats. The peppy Baker was only able to suggest some minor violations that Rebozo wasn't interested in.

Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, also is said to have pressed Baker for derogatory information on O'Brien, the book says. The Nixon forces were preoccupied with O'Brien, Baker says, because they feared he could link Nixon to embarrassing incidents involving billionaire recluse Howard Hughes.

In another chapter, Baker describes how he asked Johnson, once he was out of office, to help him out of his legal difficulties with the federal government. At Baker's urging, LBJ allegedly asked former Texas Gov. John Connally to intervene with President Nixon on Baker's behalf.

Johnson reportedly felt that Baker, who already had been convicted of theft and income tax evason, was the target of a political vendetta. At LBJ's request, Connally allegedly asked Nixon to grant a pardon to Baker.

Nixon, says Baker, rejected the idea. Baker now says he was not interested in any pardon because it would have been an admission of wrongdoing.

Another time, President Nixon called Johnson to tell him coyly he was naming LBJ'S old friend, John Connally, as Secretary of the Treasury. Instead of being pleased, Johnson was angry because neither Nixon nor Connally had cleared it with him. LBJ's longtime friend Liz Carpenter confirmed to us that Johnson "was slightly hurt" because Nixon called him only five minutes before making the official announcement.

Footnote: We were unable to reach Kalmbach, Connally or Rebozo for comment.

Success Formula: Many hospitals are being deluged with free bottles of infant formula by the two giant corporations that dominate the market.

Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs, which sell about 85 percent of all infant formula in the United States, have been sending truckloads of free samples to the nation's larger hospitals to influence new mothers. Admitted a Bristol-Myers spokesman: "Obviously mothers are impressed with a product they receive from a hospital."

But the hospitals are getting so much free formula that they have had to rotate between each company's freebies. So the firms' promotion men, who visit hospitals as often as once a week, have had to offer other inducements, such as free architectural consulting work, symposiums and speakers.

Spokesmen for both firms told our reporter, Warren Fiske, that their promotion practices are a "public service." But they refused to tell us how much they spend on promotion or what other inducements they offer.

Two years ago, however, a small company named Baker Beechnut sued the two corporations for unfair competition and antitrust violations. Bristol-Myers and Abbott Labs settled the suit by paying large sums to their tiny rival.

Hidden Profits: The Federal Trade Commission is quietly trying to crack the corporate wall of secrecy that hides the real profits of many conglomerates.

Our sources say that 98 percent of the financial data for the car rental business, for example, are shielded from federal investigators. The profits of Hertz are buried in the books of RCA; Avis is listed somewhere in ITT's files; Econo-Car figures are deep in the records of Westinghouse.

The giant corporations can cluster the profits of many subsidiaries in their bottom-line figures. General Motors' "wheeled transport category" includes not only autos but railroad cars, trucks and refrigerators. Such firms as Jif peanut butter, Pringles potato chips and Crisco cooking oil are hidden under Proctor & Gamble's "consumer products" category. The profits for Hostess pastries, meanwhile, are buried in ITT's telephone equipment category.

The FTC is trying to force the big conglomerates to disclose their profits for individual products every year.

Wind hampers balloonists

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Two Colorado men attempting to cross the Atlantic in a balloon got caught in a "turnaround surface wind" off Nova Scotia early today. A ground control spokesman said the craft was not in danger but there was a chance its course could be altered.

Jack Vaeth, ground support director for the 85-foot high Eagle that was launched here Monday, said the balloon had crossed Yarmouth, Nova Scotia and then got caught in a wind that had pushed it south again.

Dewey Reinhard, 47, and Steve Stephenson, 42, lifted off Monday in what is recorded as the 16th attempt to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

Mother-in-Law Day proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every member of Congress has received a letter urging establishment of a national Mother-in+Law Day.

Not surprisingly, the communications came from a florists' group.

Florists' Transworld Delivery acknowledged gamely that their action was "not motivated solely by altruism," but said it had made studies showing that most people like their mothersin-law and that the time has come "to refurbish the negative image of mothers-in-law as interfering, nagging shrews."

Senate passes child porn bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is moving ahead in its drive to outlaw child pornography, described by one lawmaker as a multimillion dollar business. By an 85-1 vote Monday night, the Senate passed a bill outlawing the use of children under 16 in the production of pornographic magazines, films and other materials. It also bars the interstate sale and distribution of such materials.

Deaths linked to chemical

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The Monsanto chemical company has reported that several workers at its Nitro, W. Va., plant had died of cancer in the 1950s and 60s due to exposure to a chemical used in making synthetic rubber. Another 150 of their colleagues have undergone twice-yearly tests since then. Use of the substance, para-amino biphenyl (PAB), was stopped immediately when the cancer threat surfaced in 1955, he said.

IQ tests go on trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A class action suit filed six years ago on behalf on a handful of children assigned to classes for the mentally retarded because of low scores on IQ tests opens here today. On trial are the IQ tests themselves — and their alleged built-in bias against minority children. An attorney for the six youngsters says that IQ tests are "culturally biased against black children because they don't take into consideration the cultural experience of the children."

Israel firm on occupied land

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel will not give up any of the West Bank or the Gaza Strip, and his government has announced plans for 10 new military posts in the West Bank. Dayan told the U.N. General Assembly Monday that Israel for the past 10 years was willing to surrender occupied land for genuine peace with the Arabs "but to no avail."

Riotous convicts execute 13

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Hundreds of rebellious convicts held part of Jalisco state prison today after executing 13 inm tes they charged tyrannized them as agents of the prison administration.

Police and firemen appeared to be readying for an assault Monday night, setting up floodlights in front of a prison wall. But no attack was ordered.

Prison Director Pedro Parra said late Monday night security forces had regained control of the fortress-like, 2,300-inmate penitentiary. But no guards ventured beyond the administrative section in the front of the prison, and inmates who fled from the cellblocks said the rioters still held the main part of the complex.

A statement reportedly signed by 400 rebel inmates said the killings were "not a crime but justice." They demanded better food, work opportunities, efficient medical service and better living conditions.

Five other persons including two guards were injured in the violence Monday morning. By midafternoon all guards had been withdrawn from the cellblocks, and 2,000 men roamed freely over the interior.

Cosmonauts return to earth

MOSCOW (AP) — The two cosmonauts of the Soyuz-25 spacecraft returned to earth today after a two-day flight in which they failed to link up with an orbiting space laboratory. Both men were reported in good health. The flight was to have been a dramatic celebration of the 20th anniversary of the space age, inaugurated Oct. 4, 1957, by the first manmade earth satellite, the unmanned Soviet Sputnik.

Prize may have little effect

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The award of a Nobel Peace Prize to Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan has put their peace movement back in the headlines, but it could heighten jealousies and divisions within the 14-month-old crusade. The delayed award Monday of the 1976 prize to the two founders of Northern Ireland's Peace People underlined that the organization is more popular and respected abroad than it is at home.

'Gang of Four' under attack

PEKING (AP) -- Wherever visitors go today in China — newspaper office, middle school, factory, commune, university, fishing village — the one thing they are certain to hear is an attack on the "Gang of Four." In a 16-day visit, a group of Associated Press executives and directors heard the purged radical leaders blamed for almost every conceivable setback China suffered in recent years, but particularly in the 13 months since the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Hijack duo seeks asylum

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A man and woman employed by the Czechoslovak airlines and carrying loaded pistols hijacked a domestic jetliner to Frankfurt airport today and asked for political asylum, police said.

The two wore their uniforms but traveled as passengers, police said.

After holding the other 24 passengers and three crew members hostage on the plane for two hours, the two surrendered to police, Frankfurt police chief Knut Mueller said.

He identified them only as Vlastislav T., 29, and Rusena V., 22, both employed by the CSA airline in Karlovy Vary, a once glittering spa known as Carlsbad. They carried pistols when they boarded the flight to Prague, he said.

Separated twin now critical

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ferra Hope, the baby girl who survived surgical separation from a twin sister who died, was reported in extremely critical condition today.

The child, who doctors have said makes medical history each hour she lives, took a turn for the worse during the weekend when she developed pneumonia and kidney problems.

Ferra Hope, born Sept. 14., has been in the surgical intensive care unit at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences.

She was separated from her conjoined twin sister during a five-hour operation Oct. 1. The sister died during the surgery.

The names of the parents have been withheld.

The baby is the first child to live more than six hours after an operation to separate twins born with one torso and a conjoined heart.

The condition is called thoracopagus and only 25 other cases have been recorded. Four of those sets of twins died within six hours, three were not separated and died within 90 days, and 18 were stillborn, officials say.

The twins weighed 11 pounds at birth. They had one trunk, two heads, two legs, two normal arms and a third arm with two hands attached to the wrist in a "praying hands" position, according to Dr. Steve Golladay.

The Sundance Kid's real name was Harry Longabough.

Wind hampers balloonists

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Two Colorado men attempting to cross the Atlantic in a balloon got caught in a "turnaround surface wind" off Nova Scotia early today. A ground control spokesman said the craft was not in danger but there was a chance its course could be altered.

Jack Vaeth, ground support director for the 85-foot high Eagle that was launched here Monday, said the balloon had crossed Yarmouth, Nova Scotia and then got caught in a wind that had pushed it south again.

Dewey Reinhard, 47, and Steve Stephenson, 42, lifted off Monday in what is recorded as the 16th attempt to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

Mother-in-Law Day proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every member of Congress has received a letter urging establishment of a national Mother-in+Law Day.

Not surprisingly, the communications came from a florists' group.

Florists' Transworld Delivery acknowledged gamely that their action was "not motivated solely by altruism," but said it had made studies showing that most people like their mothersin-law and that the time has come "to refurbish the negative image of mothers-in-law as interfering, nagging shrews."

Senate passes child porn bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is moving ahead in its drive to outlaw child pornography, described by one lawmaker as a multimillion dollar business. By an 85-1 vote Monday night, the Senate passed a bill outlawing the use of children under 16 in the production of pornographic magazines, films and other materials. It also bars the interstate sale and distribution of such materials.

Deaths linked to chemical

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The Monsanto chemical company has reported that several workers at its Nitro, W. Va., plant had died of cancer in the 1950s and 60s due to exposure to a chemical used in making synthetic rubber. Another 150 of their colleagues have undergone twice-yearly tests since then. Use of the substance, para-amino biphenyl (PAB), was stopped immediately when the cancer threat surfaced in 1955, he said.

IQ tests go on trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A class action suit filed six years ago on behalf on a handful of children assigned to classes for the mentally retarded because of low scores on IQ tests opens here today. On trial are the IQ tests themselves — and their alleged built-in bias against minority children. An attorney for the six youngsters says that IQ tests are "culturally biased against black children because they don't take into consideration the cultural experience of the children."

Israel firm on occupied land

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says Israel will not give up any of the West Bank or the Gaza Strip, and his government has announced plans for 10 new military posts in the West Bank. Dayan told the U.N. General Assembly Monday that Israel for the past 10 years was willing to surrender occupied land for genuine peace with the Arabs "but to no avail."

Riotous convicts execute 13

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Hundreds of rebellious convicts held part of Jalisco state prison today after executing 13 inm tes they charged tyrannized them as agents of the prison administration.

Police and firemen appeared to be readying for an assault Monday night, setting up floodlights in front of a prison wall. But no attack was ordered.

Prison Director Pedro Parra said late Monday night security forces had regained control of the fortress-like, 2,300-inmate penitentiary. But no guards ventured beyond the administrative section in the front of the prison, and inmates who fled from the cellblocks said the rioters still held the main part of the complex.

A statement reportedly signed by 400 rebel inmates said the killings were "not a crime but justice." They demanded better food, work opportunities, efficient medical service and better living conditions.

Five other persons including two guards were injured in the violence Monday morning. By midafternoon all guards had been withdrawn from the cellblocks, and 2,000 men roamed freely over the interior.

Cosmonauts return to earth

MOSCOW (AP) — The two cosmonauts of the Soyuz-25 spacecraft returned to earth today after a two-day flight in which they failed to link up with an orbiting space laboratory. Both men were reported in good health. The flight was to have been a dramatic celebration of the 20th anniversary of the space age, inaugurated Oct. 4, 1957, by the first manmade earth satellite, the unmanned Soviet Sputnik.

Prize may have little effect

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The award of a Nobel Peace Prize to Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan has put their peace movement back in the headlines, but it could heighten jealousies and divisions within the 14-month-old crusade. The delayed award Monday of the 1976 prize to the two founders of Northern Ireland's Peace People underlined that the organization is more popular and respected abroad than it is at home.

'Gang of Four' under attack

PEKING (AP) — Wherever visitors go today in China — newspaper office, middle school, factory, commune, university, fishing village — the one thing they are certain to hear is an attack on the "Gang of Four." In a 16-day visit, a group of Associated Press executives and directors heard the purged radical leaders blamed for almost every conceivable setback China suffered in recent years, but particularly in the 13 months since the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Hijack duo seeks asylum

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A man and woman employed by the Czechoslovak airlines and carrying loaded pistols hijacked a domestic jetliner to Frankfurt airport today and asked for political asylum, police said.

The two wore their uniforms but traveled as passengers, police said.

After holding the other 24 passengers and three crew members hostage on the plane for two hours, the two surrendered to police, Frankfurt police chief Knut Mueller said.

He identified them only as Vlastislav T., 29, and Ruzena V., 22, both employed by the CSA airline in Karlovy Vary, a once glittering spa known as Carlsbad. They carried pistols when they boarded the flight to Prague, he said.

Hootchy-kootchy dress too tight

The Case of the Tight Fitting Dress
BY JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

When Clara went shopping for a dress, it was usually a production second only to the creation of the earth. She would try on everything except the drapes in the store. On one occasion, however, she wiggled into a dress that she couldn't get out of. In fact, it took her a good ten minutes of squirming around like a hootchy-kootchy dancer to get it over her head. And, when she finally did, she felt a sharp pain as a wire attached to a decorative flower on the dress jabbed her in the neck.

A short time later, the wound became infected and Clara sued Flo-Flo, the owner of the dress shop, for her injury.

"Flo-Flo was doubly careless," insisted Clara in court. "She was careless in giving me such a tight dress to try on – and she was careless in not helping me to get out of it."

"She got into it by herself," responded Flo-Flo, "so I figured she could get out of it by herself. Besides, I was too busy to help her. She had me going around in circles putting away the zillions of dresses she had tried on."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Flo-Flo liable for not helping Clara out of the tight fitting dress?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Clara, better than anyone else, knew that the dress was too tight and that she needed help to get out of it. By trying to get out of it on her own, concluded the judge, she invited danger and, thus, was responsible for her resulting injury.

Philadelphia adopts strong anti-smut law

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The city council has passed an anti-smut law that supporters say is the toughest in the nation, culminating a seven-month campaign that at one point saw councilmen raiding adult bookstores with a sledge-hammer.

Backers of the measure say it will withstand any court challenge, but civil liberties lawyers contend it is unconstitutional.

The council passed the measure 15-2 Thursday, and Mayor Frank Rizzo said he would sign it into law today.

As pornography foes celebrated in Philadelphia, the Michigan Supreme Court on Thursday threw out all local laws against obscenity. That left a weak state measure the high court already has said cannot be enforced.

The Philadelphia ordinance bans movies, shows, books and magazines that show actual or simulated sex acts, genitalia or bare female breasts unless the material has "serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value."

It also bans operation of massage parlors or model studios run "for the purpose of lewdness, assignation or prostitution." Also outlawed is the display, but not necessarily the sale, of "girlie magazines" at newsstands, drug stores and other places to which minors have access. The ordinance does not specify which publications would be considered "girlie magazines."

Citizens will have to file complaints before police can act under the measure. Maximum penalty is a $300 fine and 90 days in jail.

Hootchy-kootchy dress too tight

The Case of the Tight Fitting Dress
BY JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

When Clara went shopping for a dress, it was usually a production second only to the creation of the earth. She would try on everything except the drapes in the store. On one occasion, however, she wiggled into a dress that she couldn't get out of. In fact, it took her a good ten minutes of squirming around like a hootchy-kootchy dancer to get it over her head. And, when she finally did, she felt a sharp pain as a wire attached to a decorative flower on the dress jabbed her in the neck.

A short time later, the wound became infected and Clara sued Flo-Flo, the owner of the dress shop, for her injury.

"Flo-Flo was doubly careless," insisted Clara in court. "She was careless in giving me such a tight dress to try on – and she was careless in not helping me to get out of it."

"She got into it by herself," responded Flo-Flo, "so I figured she could get out of it by herself. Besides, I was too busy to help her. She had me going around in circles putting away the zillions of dresses she had tried on."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Flo-Flo liable for not helping Clara out of the tight fitting dress?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Clara, better than anyone else, knew that the dress was too tight and that she needed help to get out of it. By trying to get out of it on her own, concluded the judge, she invited danger and, thus, was responsible for her resulting injury.

PORTAGEVILLE— Julia Buchanan and Richard Mangrum, Portageville High School seniors, have been selected to represent the school in the Teenagers of the Week Contest sponsored each year by the Memphis Press-Scimitar newspaper.

Julia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Buchanan, ranks third in her class. In 1976-77 she was awarded the medals for highest achievement in Algebra 2 and chemistry. Julia played softball and track for one year each, and has been on the volleyball team for four years. She was elected reporter of her freshman class and treasurer of her junior class by her classmates. She is on the yearbook and school paper staff. For the past two years she was on the academic Quiz Bowl Team for P.H.S.

In community activities Julia has been a 4-H Club member for four years, serving as the reporter her first year and as treasurer since. She is in the choir of the New Bethel Baptist Church. Also, she participated in the Muscular Dystrophy Walk-A-Thon.

Her plans for a career are to enter the University of Missouri at Rolla to major in either chemical, or nuclear engineering. She spent her summer vacation working at Plastene.

Future plans for Rick are to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia and major in either editorial or photographic journalism.

Each year Hugh Frank Smith, Director, invites Bill Nance, unit administrator; John Green, principal; and Mrs. Grayce Alexander, guidance counselor, to present two outstanding seniors - one male and one female - for candidates for the Press-Scimitar's Teenager of the Week Contest.

The PHS candidates are in competition with seniors from schools in Tenn., Ark., Miss., and a few Missouri schools.

Sometime during the school year, Julia and Rick will be interviewed and featured in the Press-Scimitar. They will appear on TV, and attend a luncheon as guests of the newspaper where they will meet the judge sof the contest.

Next spring, two Teenagers of the year - a boy and a girl - will be chosen from all the candidates. Dear Ann Landers

American housewife glorified parasite

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that nutty housewife in Dallas who wrote to say how hard she works just "raising a family." The truth is that the American housewife is a glorified parasite. She does nothing but amuse herself 98 per cent of the time.

I wonder if you know how many hours the "average homebound slave" spends looking at TV, yakking on the telephone, kaffee-klatching with neighbors and reading trashy magazines.

It takes only a minute to change a diaper. The cooking can't require more than half an hour for supper. Most husbands don't come home for lunch any more. Laundry takes about an hour a week -- and the machines do the work. So they clean the house (maybe) and wash a floor or two. This uses up an hour at the most Big deal.

The real heroines are the women who run the house and hold down an eight-hour job besides. I have a lot of respect for them. They also seem to have independent, well-behaved kids who know how to do things for themselves. What's more, their husbands do less running around and their marriages seem to be working.

So let's hear it for the little lady who can run a home and help her overworked husband pay the bills, which are staggering these days. Thumbs down on the lazy complainers who call themselves "homemakers" when in reality they are "freeloaders." -- Seen It All

Dear Seen It: Since your mind is not only closed but nailed shut, I wouldn't attempt to point out the foolishness of some of your statements. You make no distinction between the woman who has a single child and one who has six -- and when you say cleaning the house and washing a floor or two takes an hour at the most -- oh, well, what's the use?

I've let you have your say because this column represents everybody's point of view, but since it's MY column, I reserve the right to have the last word. And my word to you is BULLFEATHERS, Mister.

Smallest man in world marries

CARBONDALE, Ill., – When General Tom Thumb married his lady love, Lavinia Warren, in 1863 the world stood still and watched with awe as the tiny pair vowed to love, honor and cherish till death.

General Tom Thumb, a star Circus performer who toured with P.T. Barnum for years, was 35 inches tall and Lavinia was 32 inches. Not since that time has a pair of mini-mortals captured the public's imagination or enjoyed such popularity. Until now. that is.

This year, the Greatest Show on Earth pays tribute to those marvelous mini-mortals and recreates the wedding ceremony of the century. But this time the cast has changed. The star is Michu who, at 33 inches short, is recognized by the Guinness World Book of Records as the "Smallest Man in the World." His bride to be is Juliana, a tiny princess from Hungary.

The solemn ceremony will take place when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus comes to the SIU Arena-Carbondale for four performances at 3:30 and 8:00 P.M. Tuesday and 11:00 A.M. and 8:00 P.M. Wednesday. Ticket prices are $6, $5 and $4. Plenty of good seats are still available, but $6 tickets are only available for the 11 A.M. show Wednesday.

For the past two years she was on the academic Quiz Bowl Team for P.H.S.

In community activities Julia has been a 4-H Club member for four years, serving as the reporter her first year and as treasurer since. She is in the choir of the New Bethel Baptist Church. Also, she participated in the Muscular Dystrophy Walk-A-Thon.

Her plans for a career are to enter the University of Missouri at Rolla to major in either chemical, or nuclear engineering. She spent her summer vacation working at Plastene.

Richard 'Rick' Mangrum

Richard, who is better known as Rick, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neal. He ranks sixth in his class (number one boy). He is the photographer for the yearbook and school paper. He is a charter member of the Key Club, and in his fourth year of membership, is serving as photographer. He belonged to the F T A fortwo years and is a fresent member of the National Honor Society, the French Club, and the stage band and choir. He has worked for two years in the TV Tele-a-thon for Crippled Children, and has participated in the Key Club - Student Council Bike-a-thon for the American Cancer Society for three years.

Future plans for Rick are to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia and major in either editorial or photographic journalism.

Each year Hugh Frank Smith, Director, invites Bill Nance, unit administrator; John Green, principal; and Mrs. Grayce Alexander, guidance counselor, to present two outstanding seniors - one male and one female - for candidates for the Press-Scimitar's Teenager of the Week Contest.

The PHS candidates are in competition with seniors from schools in Tenn., Ark., Miss., and a few Missouri schools.

Sometime during the school year, Julia and Rick will be interviewed and featured in the Press-Scimitar. They will appear on TV, and attend a luncheon as guests of the newspaper where they will meet the judge sof the contest.

Next spring, two Teenagers of the year - a boy and a girl - will be chosen from all the candidates. The Press- Scimitar will award each winner a $1000 college scholarship, to be sent to the college of his and her choice. First alternates will receive $250 scholarships each, and second alternates, $100 scholarships each.

Several years ago, a PHS senior, Renee Rone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rone, was the winner of one of one of the $1000 scholarships.

Dear Ann Landers

American housewife glorified parasite

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that nutty housewife in Dallas who wrote to say how hard she works just "raising a family." The truth is that the American housewife is a glorified parasite. She does nothing but amuse herself 95 per cent of the time.

I wonder if you know how many hours the "average homebound slave" spends looking at TV, yakking on the telephone, kaffee-klatching with neighbors and reading trashy magazines.

It takes only a minute to change a diaper. The cooking can't require more than half an hour for supper. Most husbands don't come home for lunch any more. Gullett, Sutton to open Series tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers, two franchises that divided baseball passions and World Series titles in the 1950s, square off in Game 1 of the 1977 World Series tonight.

"This is exciting for baseball," enthused the Dodgers' Tom Lasorda, a National League pennant winner in his rookie managerial season in the big leagues. "Here we have the two great teams which over the years have been synonomous with major league baseball."

Lasorda, who said he was cut from the Dodgers' 1955 championship team because of a young left-hander named Sandy Koufax, was highly emotional about the classic confrontation between the Yankees pinstripes and the Dodgers blue.

Meanwhile, his managerial counterpart, Billy Martin, proclaimed there was no longer any special rivalry between the Bronx Bombers and the Dodgers, former tenants in the borough of Brooklyn.

"The fifties were too long ago," said brash Billy, a hero of the Yankees' 1953 World Series win over the "Bums" of Brooklyn. "We used to travel by subway then. Now we go cross country in planes."

There now is a lot more separating Los Angeles and New York besides 3,000 miles.

The Dodgers, a team built from its minor league system, failed to enter the free-agent market. The Yankees, however, have been called the best team money can buy, adding free-agent plums Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett to last season's AL championship club that dropped four straight World Series games to the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers believe in the credo that the team that loves together plays together, while the Yankees play together on the field and argue about it in the clubhouse.

"We built this team on togetherness, love and spirit," said Lasorda, who managed many of his players in the Dodgers chain before succeeding long-time skipper Walter Alston this season. "I love my players because they got me here."

The Yankees' road to the AL pennant, won over Kansas City in the ninth inning of the fifth game for the second straight year, was a rocky one, highlighted by a near dugout brawl between Martin and Jackson, the near firing of Martin and personality clashes between Jackson and Yankees captain Thurman Munson.

"It's a relief we won," said Jackson, benched in the final game against Kansas City but a starter in right field tonight. "That way I don't have to hear how Jackson failed. It makes things a lot more peaceful around here."

It looked for a little while like the Yankees weren't going to be allowed to drift peacefully into tonight's game when Jackson received an eight-page telegram, allegedly from owner George Steinbrenner, saying his contract was terminated because his attitude had been degrading to the team.

After seriously scrutinizing the telegram for several minutes, Jackson was able to laugh it off as a hoax.

Namath gripes as Rams lose to Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears Coach Jack Pardee called it "a well fought game in the trenches." Los Angeles Rams quarterback Joe Namath agreed with the battle analogy.

"People get away with taking cheap shots and it becomes one big war out there," Namath said. "If you let people continue to get away with cheap shots, what happens to sportsmanship?"

He accused linebacker Waymond Bryant of hitting him after a play in the waning moments of the Bears' 24-23 nationally televised National Football League upset victory on a rainy, windy Monday night that ended with both teams sporting 2-2 records.

The officials slapped Bryant with a roughing-the-passer penalty and Rams right guard Dennis Harrah slugged him with a fist that brought Harrah a personal foul and ejection from the game.

"I did not see the hit but I know it was a cheap shot. I could feel it. What else can I say?" said a remorseful Harrah. "I lost my head and retaliated when I should not have."

Namath indicated that other Bears weren't bashful about getting in a tardy nudge or two either.

"If the league would look at the films, they'd see what's going on out there," he said. "Next time we play them we'll beat them. We're not that kind of team."

By the time Bryant bashed Namath in the chest, leaving him gasping for air, the Rams were straining to stay alive.

Pat Haden replaced Namath and led Los Angeles to its final touchdown, a 26-yard strike to Dwight Scales that drew the Rams to within one point with 27 seconds to play.

But the best quarterback on the field was a newly independent Bob Avellini, a third-year pro who is progressing week by week. Calling the plays for the first time this season, he said he was more confident. It showed.

He came up with scoring missiles of 70 and 72 yards to James Scott in the first half, which ended with the Rams ahead 16-14 on three Rafael Septien field goals and a 2-yard touchdown run by Lawrence McCutcheon.

Avellini's 29-yard touchdown pass to Greg Latta in the fourth quarter put the Bears ahead 24-16 and provided breathing room.

The Bears won with big plays, including a 51-yard scamper by Walter Payton, who gained 126 yards, to set up Latta's catch. But Avellini said that doesn't mean he's a more adventurous play-caller than the often conservative coaches.

"We've tried passes before. We were fortunate enough to hit them tonight," said Avellini, who completed 11 of 17 passes for 219 yards.

Namath, who went to the air 40 times, completed just 16 and had four intercepted. He said he had trouble with the bad weather and added, "Of course I played poorly. We lost."

Michigan back atop ratings; USC, OU plunge

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Michigan Wolverines returned to the top of The Associated Press college football ratings today while last week's 1-2 teams, Southern California and Oklahoma, dropped to sixth and seventh.

The Wolverines, voted out of the No. 1 position two weeks ago at the request of Coach Bo Schembechler, climbed back by defeating Michigan State 24-14 while Alabama stunned Southern Cal 21-20 and Texas knocked off Oklahoma 13-6.

Michigan received 44 of 61 first-place votes and 1,180 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The surprising Texas Longhorns, back among the elite teams in Fred Akers' first season as their head coach, vaulted from fifth place into the runnerup spot with 15 first-place ballots and 1,100 points.

Colorado, a 29-13 victor over Oklahoma State, jumped from sixth to third with one first-place vote and 775 points, followed by Alabama with 762 points. The Crimson Tide was tied for seventh a week ago.

Despite a 46-0 rout of Purdue, Ohio State slipped from fourth to fifth with 735 points and the other first-place ballot. The Buckeyes were followed by Southern Cal with 659 points and Oklahoma with 657.

Arkansas, tied for seventh last week, was eighth this time with 424 points after an idle weekend. Rounding out the Top Ten, just like last week, were Nebraska with 471 points and Penn State with 304. The Cornhuskers beat Kansas State 26-7 while the Nittany Lions shaded Utah State 16-7.

Notre Dame, which also had the weekend off, remained in 11th place. Kentucky, a 23-7 winner over Mississippi State, rose from 16th to 12th.

The rest of the Second Ten consisted of Texas A&M, Wisconsin, Texas Tech, Louisiana State, Pitt, Florida, Houston and California.

Last week's Second Ten was Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Brigham Young, California, Pitt, Kentucky, Texas Tech, LSU, Wisconsin and Florida.

Houston rejoined the Top Twenty after a one-week absence even though the Cougars didn't play last weekend. They replaced the Brigham Young Cougars, who dropped out following a 24-19 loss to Oregon State.

Dog jayvee beats Mules

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Sikeston junior varsity has a tough time beating the Poplar Bluff Mules when they must play at Poplar Bluff. The J.V. was also without the services of Gary "Big Red" Lasater, the powerful fullback. However, this group of underclassmen were not fazed and managed to squeak out a 16-15 win.

First half action by the Sikeston team was classed as "pitiful" by Coach Tom Horton. He seemed especially displeased with his defense that was "arm tackling and lacked movement."

The lack of good D and little or no offense was shown in the type of first half scoring.

In the first quarter, the Poplar Bluff tailback raced off tackle for a 40-yard touchdown romp. The extra point kick was good, and Bluff led 7-0.

Later, in the same quarter, the Bullpups got on the boards when linebacker Scott Campbell intercepted a Mule pass and ran 30 yards for the score. Quarterback Terry Duncan then swept around the left side for the two-point conversion.

The second quarter belonged to Poplar Bluff as a reverse proved to be good for a 60-yard TD. They attempted the two-pointer, and it was good. Bluff now held a 15-8 halftime lead.

During the half, Coach Horton and Coach Randy Fiedler had a "friendly" chat with the young men. "They beat us like a drum in the first half," said Horton. "But they (the Sikeston players) feel like they always have an ace in the hole."

That "ace in the hole" turned out to be an aroused defense that began to deck the Bluff runners. The Bullpups also drew a strong pair when Don "the Elk" Atkinson ran a sweep right in the third quarter good for 70 yard and a score to put the Dogs within one. Duncan then ran to his right and scored the two points to give Sikeston the lead at 16-15.

The defense held, and Sikeston collected their fifth win of the season against no losses.

The J.V. will return home to play the Cape Central Tigers next Monday night. Kickoff will be at 7:00 p.m.

Royals can't believe they're not in Series

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A discarded "GO" sign amid the debris of hot dog wrappers and empty cups at Royals Stadium Sunday night told the whole story.

Printed inside the letter "O" on the sign were the words "next year."

For the second consecutive year, the Kansas City Royals had lost in the last inning of the fifth and final game to the New York Yankees in the American League playoffs. The score was 5-3.

There was disappointment, even tears, in the stands and the clubhouse.

"I just can't believe we lost. There's no way that team over there should beat us," said shortstop Fred Patek, whose left leg was heavily bandaged after being spiked by Reggie Jackson in the eighth inning. Patek was the picture of defeat after hitting into a game-ending double play, standing dejectedly with his head bowed on the base path and later sitting alone in the dugout.

"It just looks like we can't get a World Series in this town," said Manager Whitey Herzog.

"It's disheartening. It was tough last year and now this. Two years in a row and both times in the ninth inning," he said.

"It's gonna be a long winter," Herzog said.

George Brett, whose slide into third base in the first inning produced a bench-clearing encounter with the Yankees' Graig Nettles, philosophized that baseball "is a game of ultimate highs and extreme lows."

"The game consists of so many mixed emotions," he said. "I visualized champagne and staying out until 3 in the morning two days in a row. Now I've got to make plans for the winter."

"We deserved to win this game," said Frank White, the Royals' second baseman who made a diving catch to end a Yankee threat in the eighth inning. "I thought it was ours. As long as you go into the ninth leading, you expect to win."

"For eight innings we played the best baseball of the year...Three outs, damn it! It's unbelievable you can outplay a team for eight innings and let 'em sneak in there," White said.

Pitcher Paul Splittorff, who was removed for a relief pitcher after giving up a hit at the start of the eighth inning, sat in front of his locker after the game crying.

"When Frank made that play, it seemed that the game was ours," Splittorff said. "I really thought we'd win. There was just no doubt about it, just no doubt."

Left fielder Hal McRae, who collected three hits in the game, took a realistic approach. "There's no need to worry about what happened, what could have happened...Why we lost, what caused us to lose isn't important. There' no use trying to sit around and talk about what might have been. It didn't happen."

"Hopefully, next year it'll be different," McRae added.

Ralph Gossman, a Royals fan, was asked before the start of the game what would happen if his team lost.

"Well, I'll be disappointed...but we'll get 'em next year. It didn't kill us last year and it certainly won't this year," Gossman said.

Gullett, Sutton to open Series tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers, two franchises that divided baseball passions and World Series titles in the 1950s, square off in Game 1 of the 1977 World Series tonight.

"This is exciting for baseball," enthused the Dodgers' Tom Lasorda, a National League pennant winner in his rookie managerial season in the big leagues. "Here we have the two great teams which over the years have been synonomous with major league baseball."

Lasorda, who said he was cut from the Dodgers' 1955 championship team because of a young left-hander named Sandy Koufax, was highly emotional about the classic confrontation between the Yankees pinstripes and the Dodgers blue.

Meanwhile, his managerial counterpart, Billy Martin, proclaimed there was no longer any special rivalry between the Bronx Bombers and the Dodgers, former tenants in the borough of Brooklyn.

"The fifties were too long ago," said brash Billy, a hero of the Yankees' 1953 World Series win over the "Bums" of Brooklyn. "We used to travel by subway then. Now we go cross country in planes."

There now is a lot more separating Los Angeles and New York besides 3,000 miles.

The Dodgers, a team built from its minor league system, failed to enter the free-agent market. The Yankees, however, have been called the best team money can buy, adding free-agent plums Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett to last season's AL championship club that dropped four straight World Series games to the Cincinnati Reds.

The Dodgers believe in the credo that the team that loves together plays together, while the Yankees play together on the field and argue about it in the clubhouse.

"We built this team on togetherness, love and spirit," said Lasorda, who managed many of his players in the Dodgers chain before succeeding long-time skipper Walter Alston this season. "I love my players because they got me here."

The Yankees' road to the AL pennant, won over Kansas City in the ninth inning of the fifth game for the second straight year, was a rocky one, highlighted by a near dugout brawl between Martin and Jackson, the near firing of Martin and personality clashes between Jackson and Yankees captain Thurman Munson.

"It's a relief we won," said Jackson, benched in the final game against Kansas City but a starter in right field tonight. "That way I don't have to hear how Jackson failed. It makes things a lot more peaceful around here."

It looked for a little while like the Yankees weren't going to be allowed to drift peacefully into tonight's game when Jackson received an eight-page telegram, allegedly from owner George Steinbrenner, saying his contract was terminated because his attitude had been degrading to the team.

After seriously scrutinizing the telegram for several minutes, Jackson was able to laugh it off as a hoax.

Namath gripes as Rams lose to Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears Coach Jack Pardee called it "a well fought game in the trenches." Los Angeles Rams quarterback Joe Namath agreed with the battle analogy.

"People get away with taking cheap shots and it becomes one big war out there," Namath said. "If you let people continue to get away with cheap shots, what happens to sportsmanship?"

He accused linebacker Waymond Bryant of hitting him after a play in the waning moments of the Bears' 24-23 nationally televised National Football League upset victory on a rainy, windy Monday night that ended with both teams sporting 2-2 records.

The officials slapped Bryant with a roughing-the-passer penalty and Rams right guard Dennis Harrah slugged him with a fist that brought Harrah a personal foul and ejection from the game.

"I did not see the hit but I know it was a cheap shot. I could feel it. What else can I say?" said a remorseful Harrah. "I lost my head and retaliated when I should not have."

Namath indicated that other Bears weren't bashful about getting in a tardy nudge or two either.

"If the league would look at the films, they'd see what's going on out there," he said. "Next time we play them we'll beat them. We're not that kind of team."

By the time Bryant bashed Namath in the chest, leaving him gasping for air, the Rams were straining to stay alive.

Pat Haden replaced Namath and led Los Angeles to its final touchdown, a 26-yard strike to Dwight Scales that drew the Rams to within one point with 27 seconds to play.

But the best quarterback on the field was a newly independent Bob Avellini, a third-year pro who is progressing week by week. Calling the plays for the first time this season, he said he was more confident. It showed.

He came up with scoring missiles of 70 and 72 yards to James Scott in the first half, which ended with the Rams ahead 16-14 on three Rafael Septien field goals and a 2-yard touchdown run by Lawrence McCutcheon.

Avellini's 29-yard touchdown pass to Greg Latta in the fourth quarter put the Bears ahead 24-16 and provided breathing room.

The Bears won with big plays, including a 51-yard scamper by Walter Payton, who gained 126 yards, to set up Latta's catch. But Avellini said that doesn't mean he's a more adventurous play-caller than the often conservative coaches.

"We've tried passes before. We were fortunate enough to hit them tonight," said Avellini, who completed 11 of 17 passes for 219 yards.

Namath, who went to the air 40 times, completed just 16 and had four intercepted. He said he had trouble with the bad weather and added, "Of course I played poorly. We lost."

Michigan back atop ratings; USC, OU plunge

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Michigan Wolverines returned to the top of The Associated Press college football ratings today while last week's 1-2 teams, Southern California and Oklahoma, dropped to sixth and seventh.

The Wolverines, voted out of the No. 1 position two weeks ago at the request of Coach Bo Schembechler, climbed back by defeating Michigan State 24-14 while Alabama stunned Southern Cal 21-20 and Texas knocked off Oklahoma 13-6.

Michigan received 44 of 61 first-place votes and 1,180 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The surprising Texas Longhorns, back among the elite teams in Fred Akers' first season as their head coach, vaulted from fifth place into the runnerup spot with 15 first-place ballots and 1,100 points.

Colorado, a 29-13 victor over Oklahoma State, jumped from sixth to third with one first-place vote and 775 points, followed by Alabama with 762 points. The Crimson Tide was tied for seventh a week ago.

Despite a 46-0 rout of Purdue, Ohio State slipped from fourth to fifth with 735 points and the other first-place ballot. The Buckeyes were followed by Southern Cal with 659 points and Oklahoma with 657.

Arkansas, tied for seventh last week, was eighth this time with 424 points after an idle weekend. Rounding out the Top Ten, just like last week, were Nebraska with 471 points and Penn State with 304. The Cornhuskers beat Kansas State 26-7 while the Nittany Lions shaded Utah State 16-7.

Notre Dame, which also had the weekend off, remained in 11th place. Kentucky, a 23-7 winner over Mississippi State, rose from 16th to 12th.

The rest of the Second Ten consisted of Texas A&M, Wisconsin, Texas Tech, Louisiana State, Pitt, Florida, Houston and California.

Last week's Second Ten was Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Brigham Young, California, Pitt, Kentucky, Texas Tech, LSU, Wisconsin and Florida.

Houston rejoined the Top Twenty after a one-week absence even though the Cougars didn't play last weekend. They replaced the Brigham Young Cougars, who dropped out following a 24-19 loss to Oregon State.

Dog jayvee beats Mules

POPLAR BLUFF -- The Sikeston junior varsity has a tough time beating the Poplar Bluff Mules when they must play at Poplar Bluff. The J.V. was also without the services of Gary "Big Red" Lasater, the powerful fullback. However, this group of underclassmen were not fazed and managed to squeak out a 16-15 win.

First half action by the Sikeston team was classed as "pitiful" by Coach Tom Horton. He seemed especially displeased with his defense that was "arm tackling and lacked movement."

The lack of good D and little or no offense was shown in the type of first half scoring.

In the first quarter, the Poplar Bluff tailback raced off tackle for a 40-yard touchdown romp. The extra point kick was good, and Bluff led 7-0.

Later, in the same quarter, the Bullpups got on the boards when linebacker Scott Campbell intercepted a Mule pass and ran 30 yards for the score. Quarterback Terry Duncan then swept around the left side for the two-point conversion.

The second quarter belonged to Poplar Bluff as a reverse proved to be good for a 60-yard TD. They attempted the two-pointer, and it was good. Bluff now held a 15-8 halftime lead.

During the half, Coach Horton and Coach Randy Fiedler had a "friendly" chat with the young men. "They beat us like a drum in the first half," said Horton. "But they (the Sikeston players) feel like they always have an ace in the hole."

That "ace in the hole" turned out to be an aroused defense that began to deck the Bluff runners. The Bullpups also drew a strong pair when Don "the Elk" Atkinson ran a sweep right in the third quarter good for 70 yard and a score to put the Dogs within one. Duncan then ran to his right and scored the two points to give Sikeston the lead at 16-15.

The defense held, and Sikeston collected their fifth win of the season against no losses.

The J.V. will return home to play the Cape Central Tigers next Monday night. Kickoff will be at 7:00 p.m.

Royals can't believe they're not in Series

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A discarded "GO" sign amid the debris of hot dog wrappers and empty cups at Royals Stadium Sunday night told the whole story.

Printed inside the letter "O" on the sign were the words "next year."

For the second consecutive year, the Kansas City Royals had lost in the last inning of the fifth and final game to the New York Yankees in the American League playoffs. The score was 5-3.

There was disappointment, even tears, in the stands and the clubhouse.

"I just can't believe we lost. There's no way that team over there should beat us," said shortstop Fred Patek, whose left leg was heavily bandaged after being spiked by Reggie Jackson in the eighth inning. Patek was the picture of defeat after hitting into a game-ending double play, standing dejectedly with his head bowed on the base path and later sitting alone in the dugout.

"It just looks like we can't get a World Series in this town," said Manager Whitey Herzog.

"It's disheartening. It was tough last year and now this. Two years in a row and both times in the ninth inning," he said.

"It's gonna be a long winter," Herzog said.

George Brett, whose slide into third base in the first inning produced a bench-clearing encounter with the Yankees' Graig Nettles, philosophized that baseball "is a game of ultimate highs and extreme lows."

"The game consists of so many mixed emotions," he said. "I visualized champagne and staying out until 3 in the morning two days in a row. Now I've got to make plans for the winter."

"We deserved to win this game," said Frank White, the Royals' second baseman who made a diving catch to end a Yankee threat in the eighth inning. "I thought it was ours. As long as you go into the ninth leading, you expect to win."

"For eight innings we played the best baseball of the year...Three outs, damn it! It's unbelievable you can outplay a team for eight innings and let 'em sneak in there," White said.

"When Frank made that play, it seemed that the game was ours," Splittorff said. "I really thought we'd win. There was just no doubt about it, just no doubt."

Left fielder Hal McRae, who collected three hits in the game, took a realistic approach. "There's no need to worry about what happened, what could have happened...Why we lost, what caused us to lose isn't important. There' no use trying to sit around and talk about what might have been. It didn't happen."

"Hopefully, next year it'll be different," McRae added.

Ralph Gossman, a Royals fan, was asked before the start of the game what would happen if his team lost.

"Well, I'll be disappointed...but we'll get 'em next year. It didn't kil us last year and it certainly won't this year," Gossman said.

Stoddard County net teams open tourney

ESSEX -- Host Richland, seeded first in both the varsity and junior varsity brackets, advanced to the semifinals with easy wins Monday evening as the Stoddard County Volleyball Tournament got underway at Richland High School.

Richland pasted Bell City 15-5 and 15-1 in the varsity bracket to move into Wednesday night's semifinals against Bernie. Bernie, seeded fourth, defeated Woodland 15-8 and 15-8 to earn their semifinal berth.

In the junior varsity bracket, Richland cruised past Bell City 15-5 and 15-8 as they moved into Wednesday night's jayvee semifinals against Puxico. The fourth-seeded Indians stopped Woodland 15-7 and 15-10 in their opening-round contest.

Action continues tonight at the Richland gymnasium, with four more opening-round games. Bloomfield, seeded third, takes on Dexter at 5:30 in the varsity bracket, followed by third-seeded Advance against Bernie in the jayvee bracket at 6:30. Advance meets Puxico in a varsity game at 7:30 before Bloomfield and Dexter close out opening-round play at 8:30 in a junior varsity title.

Following Wednesday night's semifinal battles, the winners will compete Thursday evening for first play in the traditional tournament. First and second place trophies will be presented in each bracket after the championship games. The B team finals are set for 6:30 Thursday, with the varsity championship game at about 7:30.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn refused the New York Yankees' application to add a 25th man to their World Series roster.

In a letter to Yankee President Gabe Paul, Kuhn said the Yankees request to add outfielder Dell Alston to their list of Series eligibles could not be approved without the consent of the National League. NL President Chub Feeney would not agree to the addition, the commissioner said.

The Yankee roster vacancy was created when New York sent utilityman Carlos May on waivers to the California Angels in mid-September. Baseball rules stipulate that players eligible for post-season action must be on the 25-man major league roster Aug. 31. Alston was playing for the Yankees' Syracuse farm team at the time.

James Wilder

Sikeston's Wilder still running at NEO A & M

MIAMI, Okla. – With great upper body development and powerful piston-like legs, James Wilder, starting fullback for the Northeastern A&M College Golden Norsemen, has become an important factor in the success of the Norse offense during the current campaign.

Wilder, a 6-2, 210, freshman from Sikeston, doesn't shy away from any opposing defense. "I just have it in my mind not to let one person bring me down and I use my second effort and my strength to get the necessary yardage," Wilder explained.

"James continually keeps his legs pumping and has great natural balance for a running back. He is definately a North-South runner because he runs straight at the opponents goal line," commented Norse head coach Lee Snider. "He also is a second effort man and gives 100 per cent on every play."

While in high school at Sikeston, Wilder led coach Terry Smith's squad to a perfect 10-0 season as a senior and gained more than 2,200 yards on the ground during his career. After missing most of his sophomore season because of a leg injury, Wilder gained 1,100 yards as a junior. Wilder was selected all-conference and received honorable mention all-state in Missouri.

"Our running backs must fill three criteria and James more than meets all of these requirements. He can run from tackle to tackle and take care of the ball which gives our offense the inside threat. He is a good blocker on both the pass and run and is a decent receiver," Snider continued.

After three games in a Norseman uniform, Wilder leads the team in three catagories. Wilder has gained 556 yards on 102 carries for a 139.0 game average and a 5.5 average per carry while scoring five touchdowns. Included in the rushing statistics is a 200-yard performance in the first game of the season against Hutchinson.

Wilder also leads the team in pass receiving with 15 of 18 receptions for 143 yards and one TD. "James has real good hands and is an excellent pass receiver. He is perhaps one of the best pass catching backs in JUCO football," said Snider. "I don't know what to think about being a receiver. I was just used for running in high school and I have had to learn to concentrate more on catching the ball," Wilder declared. Wilder also leads the team in scoring with 38 points.

"The only goal I've set for myself is to gain at least 100 yards a game. I had a bad game against Ranger, Texas because I was a little sore from a hip pointer and our offensive line wasn't coming off the ball as well as they had against Hutchinson," stated Wilder.

Besides having an outstanding season for the Norsemen, Wilder and his wife, Barbara, have a three week old son, James, junior. "The baby was born the night before the Hutchinson game and that gave me extra incentive," Wilder said.

"I've got my head set on professional football, but I have to get through JUCO ball and then major college ball first. I need to continue to develope physically before I would have a chance in the pro's. I feel like my fundamentals are sound and they will continue to grow also," explained Wilder.

Heavily recruited as a high school prospect, Wilder has his sights set on a major college. "When recruiting time comes around I will probably be thinking about the schools that tried to recruit me out of high school," Wilder replied.

"James has a good chance to be as good a player as he will allow himself. If would like to keep him two years because he needs to continue to develop and mature as a player. Because of his many talents, James has an excellent chance to play anywhere in the United States," concluded Snider.

Coryell irked at refs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An irate Don Coryell of the St. Louis Cardinals believes the turnover among officials in the National Football League should equal that of his coaching colleagues.

"About a quarter of the coaches get fired every year...about a quarter to a third," Coryell said Monday. "I think they (NFL supervisors) should grade their people, and about a quarter of them should be replaced.

"If I say anything derogatory about the officials and the officiating, I'm fined more than I make," he added, however. "They'd fine me $5,000, and I can't afford it. You have no recourse."

Coryell's remakrs at a Quarterback Club luncheon followed the Cardinals' 30-24 loss Sunday to the Dallas Cowboys in a key National Conference East contest. Twice St. Louis was penalized for pass interference in the fourth quarter. Each time the Cowboys scored while in the process of overcoming a 24-16 deficit.

Penalties of 42 and 40 yards plus a 15-yard setback for roughing Dallas passer Roger Staubach in the waning minutes swelled St. Louis' assessments for the day to 166 yards, a club record.

On the other side of rhe ledger, nine Cowboys rules infractions cost them 109 yards, including 99 in the opening half and 10 yards for holding near the finish, nullifying a 90-yard touchdown pass play.

"There were a lot of critical calls," Dallas Coach Tom Landry afterward acknowledged. "I know we didn't have any offense the first half because of the penalties."

Coryell, whose team fell to 1-3 with the defeat as Dallas rose to 4-0, was more adamant.

"I believe that an official's call shouldn't determine the outcome of the game and it does very, very often," said the St. Louis coach while calling again for instant replay appeals.

"I think if there's an infraction that hasn't been called, it could be used, too," he said. "The way it is now, there's absolutely nothing you can do."

Under a procedure he recommended two years ago, a team calling for instant replay-appeal of an official's ruling would be charged one of its timeouts if the ruling were not reversed. But Coryell readily admitted Monday that the proposal has little chance of becoming a reality.

"They (NFL) have all kinds of reasons why it can't be done I don't believe any of it," he said. "I think it would be very important."

An officiating crew headed by Referee Fred Silva dropped the flags for the 20 penalties in Sunday's game. Others were Ralph Morcroft, umpire; Vern Jacob, line judge; Norm Kragseth, head linesman.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn refused the New York Yankees' application to add a 25th man to their World Series roster.

In a letter to Yankee President Gabe Paul, Kuhn said the Yankees request to add outfielder Dell Alston to their list of Series eligibles could not be approved without the consent of the National League. NL President Chub Feeney would not agree to the addition, the commissioner said.

The Yankee roster vacancy was created when New York sent utilityman Carlos May on waivers to the California Angels in mid-September. Baseball rules stipulate that players eligible for post-season action must be on the 25-man major league roster Aug. 31. Alston was playing for the Yankees' Syracuse farm team at the time.

Howard Ehmke either led or was tied for the lead six times in hitting American League batters with a pitched ball.

The home team must have 24 footballs ready for testing by the referee before each National Football League game.

National Football League place-kickers can use a tee for kickoffs but not for field goal or extra point attempts.

Joe Louis posted seven consecutive knockouts in defense of his heavyweight title from Feb. 23, 1938, to Sept. 20, 1939.

James Wilder

Sikeston's Wilder still running at NEO A & M

MIAMI, Okla. – With great upper body development and powerful piston-like legs, James Wilder, starting fullback for the Northeastern A&M College Golden Norsemen, has become an important factor in the success of the Norse offense during the current campaign.

Wilder, a 6-2, 210, freshman from Sikeston, doesn't shy away from any opposing defense. "I just have it in my mind not to let one person bring me down and I use my second effort and my strength to get the necessary yardage," Wilder explained.

"James continually keeps his legs pumping and has great natural balance for a running back. He is definately a North-South runner because he runs straight at the opponents goal line," commented Norse head coach Lee Snider. "He also is a second effort man and gives 100 per cent on every play."

While in high school at Sikeston, Wilder led coach Terry Smith's squad to a perfect 10-0 season as a senior and gained more than 2,200 yards on the ground during his career. After missing most of his sophomore season because of a leg injury, Wilder gained 1,100 yards as a junior. Wilder was selected all-conference and received honorable mention all-state in Missouri.

"Our running backs must fill three criteria and James more than meets all of these requirements. He can run from tackle to tackle and take care of the ball which gives our offense the inside threat. He is a good blocker on both the pass and run and is a decent receiver," Snider continued.

After three games in a Norseman uniform, Wilder leads the team in three catagories. Wilder has gained 556 yards on 102 carries for a 139.0 game average and a 5.5 average per carry while scoring five touchdowns. Included in the rushing statistics is a 200-yard performance in the first game of the season against Hutchinson.

Wilder also leads the team in pass receiving with 15 of 18 receptions for 143 yards and one TD. "James has real good hands and is an excellent pass receiver. He is perhaps one of the best pass catching backs in JUCO football," said Snider. "I don't know what to think about being a receiver. I was just used for running in high school and I have had to learn to concentrate more on catching the ball," Wilder declared. Wilder also leads the team in scoring with 38 points.

"The only goal I've set for myself is to gain at least 100 yards a game. I had a bad game against Ranger, Texas because I was a little sore from a hip pointer and our offensive line wasn't coming off the ball as well as they had against Hutchinson," stated Wilder.

Besides having an outstanding season for the Norsemen, Wilder and his wife, Barbara, have a three week old son, James, junior. "The baby was born the night before the Hutchinson game and that gave me extra incentive," Wilder said.

"I've got my head set on professional football, but I have to get through JUCO ball and then major college ball first. I need to continue to develope physically before I would have a chance in the pro's. I feel like my fundamentals are sound and they will continue to grow also," explained Wilder.

Heavily recruited as a high school prospect, Wilder has his sights set on a major college. "When recruiting time comes around I will probably be thinking about the schools that tried to recruit me out of high school," Wilder replied.

"James has a good chance to be as good a player as he will allow himself. If would like to keep him two years because he needs to continue to develop and mature as a player. Because of his many talents, James has an excellent chance to play anywhere in the United States," concluded Snider.

Coryell irked at refs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An irate Don Coryell of the St. Louis Cardinals believes the turnover among officials in the National Football League should equal that of his coaching colleagues.

"About a quarter of the coaches get fired every year...about a quarter to a third," Coryell said Monday. "I think they (NFL supervisors) should grade their people, and about a quarter of them should be replaced.

"If I say anything derogatory about the officials and the officiating, I'm fined more than I make," he added, however. "They'd fine me $5,000, and I can't afford it. You have no recourse."

Coryell's remakrs at a Quarterback Club luncheon followed the Cardinals' 30-24 loss Sunday to the Dallas Cowboys in a key National Conference East contest. Twice St. Louis was penalized for pass interference in the fourth quarter. Each time the Cowboys scored while in the process of overcoming a 24-16 deficit.

Penalties of 42 and 40 yards plus a 15-yard setback for roughing Dallas passer Roger Staubach in the waning minutes swelled St. Louis' assessments for the day to 166 yards, a club record.

On the other side of rhe ledger, nine Cowboys rules infractions cost them 109 yards, including 99 in the opening half and 10 yards for holding near the finish, nullifying a 90-yard touchdown pass play.

"There were a lot of critical calls," Dallas Coach Tom Landry afterward acknowledged. "I know we didn't have any offense the first half because of the penalties."

Coryell, whose team fell to 1-3 with the defeat as Dallas rose to 4-0, was more adamant.

"I believe that an official's call shouldn't determine the outcome of the game and it does very, very often," said the St. Louis coach while calling again for instant replay appeals.

"I think if there's an infraction that hasn't been called, it could be used, too," he said. "The way it is now, there's absolutely nothing you can do."

Under a procedure he recommended two years ago, a team calling for instant replay-appeal of an official's ruling would be charged one of its timeouts if the ruling were not reversed. But Coryell readily admitted Monday that the proposal has little chance of becoming a reality.

"They (NFL) have all kinds of reasons why it can't be done I don't believe any of it," he said. "I think it would be very important."

An officiating crew headed by Referee Fred Silva dropped the flags for the 20 penalties in Sunday's game. Others were Ralph Morcroft, umpire; Vern Jacob, line judge; Norm Kragseth, head linesman.

Defining death

Catholic opposition may prevent passage of 'brain death' bill

By JESSE W. BUNN
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — A bill to legally define death in Missouri as "irreversible cessation of total brain function" met with such opposition from Missouri Catholics during the last legislative session that the bill may be dropped when the General Assembly convenes again in January.

Sen. Joe Frappier, R-Florissant, sponsor of the definition of death bill, said unless the Missouri Catholic Conference softens its position or agrees to compromise, he will not re-introduce the bill. During the last session, the bill passed the Senate 18-14 but died in a House committee.

The House Public Health and Safety Committee has scheduled public hearings on definition of death for October, even though the bill may not be proposed.

Frappier's bill was a model drawn up by the American Bar Association which reads, "For all legal purposes, a human body, with irreversible cessation of total brain function, according to usual and customary standards of medical practice, shall be considered dead."

Currently, death in Missouri is based on common law and court interpretation and is considered total stoppage of heartbeat and respiration, according to the Missouri Senate Select Committee on Definition of Death.

Supporters of Frappier's bill contend the brain death definition would decrease the chances of lawsuits that might be filed if a physician takes a patient off life-supporting systems. They also say it would help in transplanting organs, such as kidneys, which now are allowed to deteriorate before a physician officially pronounces death. Supporters argue doctors presently delay pronouncing death in fear of lawsuits.

Squaring off in the battle over definition of death are the Missouri Medical Association and the Missouri Catholic Conference, and the Catholics appear to have the upper hand.

Dr. John Matthews, legislative chairman for the Missouri State Medical Association, said controversy plaguing physicians in determining whether to stop artificially supporting life could be clarified by a law defining death. "With all the controversy that has been engendered over recent, highly controversial public cases, a simple definition of death is needed."

Advanced technology allows doctors to prolong death, even though a patient's condition may worsen to the point where the brain is dead. "The real problem was that although a change (in brain activity) had taken place, support went on interminably," he said. "With hospital costs at $1,000 a day and more, in some cases, life support becomes ridiculous."

In its statement before the House committee last March, the Missouri Catholic Conference said "there is no legal or practical need for this legislation." Louis DeFeo, counsel for the Catholic Conference, said there has been no cases of a doctor being sued because he pronounced a person dead based on usual standards of medical practice. The Catholic Conference admitted the possibility exists, but favors other alternatives.

In its statement, the Catholic Conference said, "To define death by law is to define the limits of legal protection to human life. Man, made in the image of his Creator, has a dignity and value that transcends economics, transcends social convenience, and even transcends pain and death."

Frappier said he hopes for a compromise, but has seen no indication that agreement for a measure defining death will be reached. "We're doing research now on whether the Cardinal or the Missouri Catholic Conference will change their minds," he said. "If they don't change their minds, the House will be holding hearings on a bill that won't be proposed."

The chairman of the House Public Health and Safety Committee is Judith O'Connor, D-Bridgeton, a Catholic. After the definition of death bill passed the Senate last session, it was assigned to her committee, but she did not bring it to a vote. She said, "I didn't feel the committee had time to know all the ramifications of it. Pressure started immediately to bring it to a vote. If it is introduced next time, I want to be sure my committee is prepared to deal with it."

If the bill is proposed in the next session, Mrs. O'Connor said, "I will try to see it comes to a vote. If it passes out of committee, I would speak against it on the House floor."

"I'm sorry she didn't say that last year," said Frappier.

One of her objections, she said, is that, "It is ludicrous to define death when we haven't defined life." She said the physician should be responsible for determining the point at which a patient is dead. "I think it's a medical decision. It's an individual decision. It is a kind of escape for hospitals who want the legislature to give them an out."

The committee chairman also said she is troubled with the phrase "according to usual and customary standards of medical practice" which would be considered in determining death. "You might think there is some standard but there really isn't," she said.

In her committee's hearing on the bill last session, Mrs. O'Connor said she was overwhelmed at the pressure to approve the measure from organizations specializing in organ transplants. "I've never had such a hard sell in my life and it caused me to back away," she said.

Frappier said, "We're talking about compassion, not only for the guy who is dead, but for the physician being retained and the family," he said. "Transplants are almost non-existent in Missouri now. It's a shame there is a medically inaccurate law that prevents that."

And although Frappier believes such a law defining death is vital to doctors and patients, he said he will not push for the law if he cannot overcome the Catholic pressure. "If Mr. DeFeo, on behalf of the Cardinal and other Bishops, says, 'We're opposed to it,' then that's it."

Danforth not convinced on Panama Canal issue

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new view on Panama Canal treaties has been expressed by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

In a letter to President Carter dated Oct. 7, Danforth stated that last month he announced his support for the new Panama Canal Treaties on two crucial assumptions, which he took to be clear representations made to him in briefings by Ambassadors Elsworth Bunker and Linowitz.

The assumptions, Danforth stated, were that under the new treaties the United States would retain: The right to use the Panama Canal on a most favored Nation basis and the right to defend the Canal militarily in perpetuity.

Danforth said that on Sept. 26 Secretary of State Cyrus Vance stated to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "After the Year 2000 .... the United States will have a permanent right to maintain the Canal's Neutrality, including the right to defend the Canal, if necessary; with our warships given the right to use the Canal expeditiously".

This statement by Secretary Vance is consistent with the representations made to me by Ambassadors Linowitz and Bunker, Danforth said.

However, Danforth said, doubt has been cast on the accuracy of these representations, since a cable from our Embassy in Panama recently made public by Sen. Robert Dole indicates that the Republic of Panama has a different understanding of the treaties from that expressed by our government, particularly our right to defend the Canal militarily after the year 2,000 is now in question."

Danforth's letter continued, "I want to reiterate to you the position I have taken on the treaties for the past month. If I am to vote for ratification I must be persuaded that the United States will forever retain the right to use the canal and the right to defend it.

"I was led to believe that the treaties would retain these two necessary rights. However, I now have my doubts, particularly concerning the right of military defense."

Danforth ended by saying, "I will now have to be convinced that my previous understandings on the two crucial issues mentioned above remain valid if my vote on ratification is to be affirmative.

Birth rate likely to remain low

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. birth rate is likely to continue at a low level as long as the economy stays healthy and a large proportion of women hold jobs, a research firm reports.

"Obviously, people are not going to stop having babies altogether, but low levels of fertility are probably with us to stay," said the report released by the Rand Corp. on Thursday.

Economists William P. Butz and Michael P. Ward contend the decline in fertility rate in recent years is the result, more than anything else, of the great increase in the number of young women who work.

Since the late 1960s, they said, there has been a reversal of the historic pattern that saw more babies born during economic good times and fewer in lean periods.

In the past, when few women worked, the report said, an increase in male wages raised the family income and there was a corresponding tendency for families to have more children.

But now, a strong economy leads to increases in women's wages, and a wife's working time becomes more valuable, while taking time out to bear and raise children is relatively more expensive. This discourages fertility, the economists speculate.

State to oversee aging work

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale has advised the state Department of Social Services to oversee the operations of the Southwest Missouri Office of Aging for the next 30 days.

The action was taken to try and help the group keep funding which was revoked earlier this year by the state Office of Aging.

Social Services Deputy Director James Bergfalk said the plan to work with the Southwest Missouri office had been cleared by the governor, whose primary concern was that "services to the elderly continue."

Southwest Missouri Office of Aging had been scheduled to appeal a ruling Thursday to Social Service Director James Walsh that its funding be revoked for allegedly not meeting federal requirements.

However, the hearing was cancelled after the agreement that Social Services would intervene to oversee the organization's operations for the next month.

Bergfalk said the agreement would postpone a final decision on the annual funding for the southwest office for about 30 days, but the effort of the department would be aimed at helping the group meeet compliance, rather than withdraw its funding.

KCs elect new officers

St. Francis Xavier Council 3151 of the Knights of Columbus in Sikeston have elected and installed new officers for the coming year.

They are: Chaplain, Father Amel Shibley; grand knight, Clem Sheffer II; deputy grand knight, John Sides; chancellor, Vernon Buck; financial secretary, Clem Sheffer III; recording secretery, George Steck; treasurer, Carl Effink; advocate, Lewis Blanton; lecturer, William Pinnell; warden, Mike Welter; inside guard, Lawrence Moore; outside guard, Jeff Turner; and trustees, Elmer Ernst, Art Ziegler, and William Pinnell.

These officers will be assisted by P.J. Schlosser as general program director and William Paylor as membership director.

Teasdale opposes channelization

FISK, Mo. (AP) — A plan to channelize eight miles of the St. Francis River has drawn opposition from Missouri Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is studying the feasibility of the project, which would affect the St. Francis from Mingo Ditch to Fisk.

A spokesman for Teasdale said Thursday the governor has informed the Corps' Memphis district that he is against the idea..

Environmentalists fear the channelization would harm wildlife in the area. The Corps has not yet decided whether to proceed with the project.

Defining death

Catholic opposition may prevent passage of 'brain death' bill

By JESSE W. BUNN
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — A bill to legally define death in Missouri as "irreversible cessation of total brain function" met with such opposition from Missouri Catholics during the last legislative session that the bill may be dropped when the General Assembly convenes again in January.

Sen. Joe Frappier, R-Florissant, sponsor of the definition of death bill, said unless the Missouri Catholic Conference softens its position or agrees to compromise, he will not re-introduce the bill. During the last session, the bill passed the Senate 18-14 but died in a House committee.

The House Public Health and Safety Committee has scheduled public hearings on definition of death for October, even though the bill may not be proposed.

Frappier's bill was a model drawn up by the American Bar Association which reads, "For all legal purposes, a human body, with irreversible cessation of total brain function, according to usual and customary standards of medical practice, shall be considered dead."

Currently, death in Missouri is based on common law and court interpretation and is considered total stoppage of heartbeat and respiration, according to the Missouri Senate Select Committee on Definition of Death.

Supporters of Frappier's bill contend the brain death definition would decrease the chances of lawsuits that might be filed if a physician takes a patient off life-supporting systems. They also say it would help in transplanting organs, such as kidneys, which now are allowed to deteriorate before a physician officially pronounces death. Supporters argue doctors presently delay pronouncing death in fear of lawsuits.

Squaring off in the battle over definition of death are the Missouri Medical Association and the Missouri Catholic Conference, and the Catholics appear to have the upper hand.

Dr. John Matthews, legislative chairman for the Missouri State Medical Association, said controversy plaguing physicians in determining whether to stop artificially supporting life could be clarified by a law defining death. "With all the controversy that has been engendered over recent, highly controversial public cases, a simple definition of death is needed."

Advanced technology allows doctors to prolong death, even though a patient's condition may worsen to the point where the brain is dead. "The real problem was that although a change (in brain activity) had taken place, support went on interminably," he said. "With hospital costs at $1,000 a day and more, in some cases, life support becomes ridiculous."

In its statement before the House committee last March, the Missouri Catholic Conference said "there is no legal or practical need for this legislation." Louis DeFeo, counsel for the Catholic Conference, said there has been no cases of a doctor being sued because he pronounced a person dead based on usual standards of medical practice. The Catholic Conference admitted the possibility exists, but favors other alternatives.

In its statement, the Catholic Conference said, "To define death by law is to define the limits of legal protection to human life. Man, made in the image of his Creator, has a dignity and value that transcends economics, transcends social convenience, and even transcends pain and death."

Frappier said he hopes for a compromise, but has seen no indication that agreement for a measure defining death will be reached. "We're doing research now on whether the Cardinal or the Missouri Catholic Conference will change their minds," he said. "If they don't change their minds, the House will be holding hearings on a bill that won't be proposed."

The chairman of the House Public Health and Safety Committee is Judith O'Connor, D-Bridgeton, a Catholic. After the definition of death bill passed the Senate last session, it was assigned to her committee, but she did not bring it to a vote. She said, "I didn't feel the committee had time to know all the ramifications of it. Pressure started immediately to bring it to a vote. If it is introduced next time, I want to be sure my committee is prepared to deal with it."

If the bill is proposed in the next session, Mrs. O'Connor said, "I will try to see it comes to a vote. If it passes out of committee, I would speak against it on the House floor."

"I'm sorry she didn't say that last year," said Frappier.

One of her objections, she said, is that, "It is ludicrous to define death when we haven't defined life." She said the physician should be responsible for determining the point at which a patient is dead. "I think it's a medical decision. It's an individual decision. It is a kind of escape for hospitals who want the legislature to give them an out."

The committee chairman also said she is troubled with the phrase "according to usual and customary standards of medical practice" which would be considered in determining death. "You might think there is some standard but there really isn't," she said.

In her committee's hearing on the bill last session, Mrs. O'Connor said she was overwhelmed at the pressure to approve the measure from organizations specializing in organ transplants. "I've never had such a hard sell in my life and it caused me to back away," she said.

Frappier said, "We're talking about compassion, not only for the guy who is dead, but for the physician being retained and the family," he said. "Transplants are almost non-existent in Missouri now. It's a shame there is a medically inaccurate law that prevents that."

And although Frappier believes such a law defining death is vital to doctors and patients, he said he will not push for the law if he cannot overcome the Catholic pressure. "If Mr. DeFeo, on behalf of the Cardinal and other Bishops, says, 'We're opposed to it,' then that's it."

Danforth not convinced on Panama Canal issue

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new view on Panama Canal treaties has been expressed by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

In a letter to President Carter dated Oct. 7, Danforth stated that last month he announced his support for the new Panama Canal Treaties on two crucial assumptions, which he took to be clear representations made to him in briefings by Ambassadors Elsworth Bunker and Linowitz.

The assumptions, Danforth stated, were that under the new treaties the United States would retain: The right to use the Panama Canal on a most favored Nation basis and the right to defend the Canal militarily in perpetuity.

Danforth said that on Sept. 26 Secretary of State Cyrus Vance stated to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "After the Year 2000 .... the United States will have a permanent right to maintain the Canal's Neutrality, including the right to defend the Canal, if necessary; with our warships given the right to use the Canal expeditiously".

This statement by Secretary Vance is consistent with the representations made to me by Ambassadors Linowitz and Bunker, Danforth said.

However, Danforth said, doubt has been cast on the accuracy of these representations, since a cable from our Embassy in Panama recently made public by Sen. Robert Dole indicates that the Republic of Panama has a different understanding of the treaties from that expressed by our government, particularly our right to defend the Canal militarily after the year 2,000 is now in question."

Danforth's letter continued, "I want to reiterate to you the position I have taken on the treaties for the past month. If I am to vote for ratification I must be persuaded that the United States will forever retain the right to use the canal and the right to defend it.

"I was led to believe that the treaties would retain these two necessary rights. However, I now have my doubts, particularly concerning the right of military defense."

Danforth ended by saying, "I will now have to be convinced that my previous understandings on the two crucial issues mentioned above remain valid if my vote on ratification is to be affirmative.

State to oversee aging work

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale has advised the state Department of Social Services to oversee the operations of the Southwest Missouri Office of Aging for the next 30 days.

The action was taken to try and help the group keep funding which was revoked earlier this year by the state Office of Aging.

Social Services Deputy Director James Bergfalk said the plan to work with the Southwest Missouri office had been cleared by the governor, whose primary concern was that "services to the elderly continue."

Southwest Missouri Office of Aging had been scheduled to appeal a ruling Thursday to Social Service Director James Walsh that its funding be revoked for allegedly not meeting federal requirements.

However, the hearing was cancelled after the agreement that Social Services would intervene to oversee the organization's operations for the next month.

Bergfalk said the agreement would postpone a final decision on the annual funding for the southwest office for about 30 days, but the effort of the department would be aimed at helping the group meeet compliance, rather than withdraw its funding.

Birth rate likely to remain low

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. birth rate is likely to continue at a low level as long as the economy stays healthy and a large proportion of women hold jobs, a research firm reports.

"Obviously, people are not going to stop having babies altogether, but low levels of fertility are probably with us to stay," said the report released by the Rand Corp. on Thursday.

Economists William P. Butz and Michael P. Ward contend the decline in fertility rate in recent years is the result, more than anything else, of the great increase in the number of young women who work.

Since the late 1950s, they said, there has been a reversal of the historic pattern that saw more babies born during economic good times and fewer in lean periods.

In the past, when few women worked, the report said, an increase in male wages raised the family income and there was a corresponding tendency for families to have more children.

But now, a strong economy leads to increases in women's wages, and a wife's working time becomes more valuable, while taking time out to bear and raise children is relatively more expensive. This discourages fertility, the economists speculate.

KCs elect new officers

St. Francis Xavier Council 3151 of the Knights of Columbus in Sikeston have elected and installed new officers for the coming year.

They are: Chaplain, Father Amel Shibley; grand knight, Clem Sheffer II; deputy grand knight, John Sides; chancellor, Vernon Buck; financial secretary, Clem Sheffer III; recording secretery, George Steck; treasurer, Carl Effink; advocate, Lewis Blanton; lecturer, William Pinnell; warden, Mike Welter; inside guard, Lawrence Moore; outside guard, Jeff Turner; and trustees, Elmer Ernst, Art Ziegler, and William Pinnell.

These officers will be assisted by P.J. Schlosser as general program director and William Paylor as membership director.

Teasdale opposes channelization

FISK, Mo. (AP) — A plan to channelize eight miles of the St. Francis River has drawn opposition from Missouri Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is studying the feasibility of the project, which would affect the St. Francis from Mingo Ditch to Fisk.

A spokesman for Teasdale said Thursday the governor has informed the Corps' Memphis district that he is against the idea..

Environmentalists fear the channelization would harm wildlife in the area. The Corps has not yet decided whether to proceed with the project.

Chrysler price boost rivals Ford and GM

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers who buy a 1978 American-made car will be paying nearly $400 more on the average than for a similar 1977 model.

That prospect became certain Thursday when Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 U.S. automaker, announced it is boosting prices on its new cars by an average $372.

Chrysler was the last of the Big Three automakers to announce an increase of about 6 per cent. The three companies sell 98 per cent of all American-made cars in this country. American Motors Corp., which accounts for the other 2 per cent, has not issued a formal price list for all of its 1978 cars.

Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday it was boosting prices an average $387 or 5.8 per cent. General Motors announced an average $405, or 6 per cent, boost last month.

Chrysler said base vehicle prices are going up $243 a car on the average; options, $111, or 7 per cent, and shipping charges, $18, for a total $372.

Base price increases range from $46 for the Dodge Diplomat and Chrysler LeBarron four-door sedans to $501 for the two-door Chrysler New Yorker Brougham.

Based on Chrysler's new prices, the average 1978 Plymouth, Dodge or Chrysler car, including options, will carry a suggested retail price approaching $6,500, compared with slightly more than $6,100 in 1977. The average Ford and GM car will be priced above $7,000, not including taxes or discounts offered by dealers.

3 children found stabbed to death

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Police slogged through the muddy woods surrounding this suburban community today in hopes of finding the weapon used by an unknown killer who savagely stabbed three small girls in the back while they played within shouting distance of their homes on Sunday.

The bodies of Theresa Hogan, 8, her sister Deborah Anne, 10, and Ann Marie Brzeskiewicz, 8, were found Monday by officers after an overnight search initiated by their frantic parents.

The usually tranquil subdivision is located about 12 miles south of Baltimore, away from major freeways or shopping centers. Some residents speculated that the killer, therefore, may have been one of their own neighbors.

Police, however, said they were virtually empty-handed so far in their investigation of the brutal murders. About 15 officers combed the scene today with metal detectors, while another 45 were assigned elsewhere on the case.

A telephone hotline was established for residents to call in any information they might feel relevant, such as accounts of past incidents of juvenile violence.

One officer, Lt. Robert Russell, said one of the girls had been stabbed 40 times.

State Medical Examiner Russell Fisher said two of the girls had been stabbed about six times, and the third victim had more than a dozen knife wounds. Fisher said the murder weapon was probably a hunting knife with a blade at least five inches long.

The girls were found fully clothed and there was no evidence that they had been sexually molested, authorities said.

"We don't have anything," said Detective Sgt. William Chaplin of the Anne Arundel County homicide squad. "No clues, no motives, no weapon."

News of the slayings sent parents to Southgate Elementary School to gather up their children when classes were dismissed. School officials said usually a dozen parents will pick up their children but about 150 were waiting outside Monday afternoon.

"You just feel like clutching them to you," said one anxious mother.

"You always hear about it happening somewhere else, but it doesn't happen in your neighborhood," said Roger Westphal, whose children played with the Hogan girls.

There was no comment from Jacob and Judy Brzeskiewicz, the parents of Anne Marie. But Sgt. Chaplin said the couple, who have another daughter and five sons, took the news very hard, and that a doctor was called to the house.

Richard Hogan, the father of the other two victims, said, "We're deeply shocked. We have no idea what caused it or anything."

Nobel physics, chemistry winners are announced

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Americans and a Briton won the Nobel prize for physics today and a Belgian was awarded the prize for chemistry.

The Swedish Academy gave the physics prize to John H. Van Vleck, 78, of Harvard University; his former student Philip Anderson, 55, of Princeton University and Bell Laboratories; and Sir Nevill F. Mott, 72, of Cambridge University in England.

The chemistry prize went to Ilya Prigogine, 60, of the Free University of Brussels. He is also director of the Center for Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics at the University of Texas.

The physics winners, who will share equally a $145,000 prize, were cited for research on the electronic structure of magnetic and disordered systems — work applied to development of the laser, advancement in the industrial use of glass, and in copper spirals for birth control devices.

Prigogine, who gets $145,000, was cited for contributions in the field of thermodynamics.

The physics award was announced behind schedule after three hours' deliberation by the academy, which was reportedly divided over two sets of candidates.

A statement by the academy cited the winners' "highly valuable contributions" in "large domains" of physics.

"This year's prize put the emphasis on their work concerning electron-electron interaction and the coupling between the motions of the electrons and the atomic nuclei in magnetic and disordered materials, where they ... have gone far beyond the conventional theories, with direct importance for experiments and technology," the academy said.

Van Vleck, a 78-year-old professor emeritus, has been called "the father of modern magnetism."

Mott, also a professor emeritus, was born in 1905. Anderson, once a student of Van Vleck, was born in 1923.

They will share a prize sum of $145,000.

The physics prize has been dominated by Americans since World War II. Last year Americans Burton Richter and Samuel Ting shared the prize for their discovery of a new heavy elementary particle.

The academy said Anderson, Mott and Van Vleck have added many new basic concepts to solid state physics that have led quickly to technical advances.

"The distance between fundamental results in basic research and technical applications is as a rule comparatively short in this field," the academy statement said.

"As an example, one can mention that Van Vleck's ideas have played a central role for the development of the Laser, whereas the technical development of amorphous materials like glass, which is now going on, would be unthinkable without Mott's and Anderson's contributions to the fundamental theory."

The academy said Van Vleck was the first to point out the importance of electron correlation — the interaction between the motions of the electrons.

As Van Vleck's student, it said, Anderson developed this concept to explain how local magnetic moments can occur in metals like copper and silver, which in pure form are not magnetic.

Mott and Anderson, working separately, have contributed to the knowledge about disordered systems, the academy said. These systems exist within materials whose atomic structures are irregular — a quality that makes it difficult to treat them theoretically.

Litton memorial site announced

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The father of Rep. Jerry Litton announced today a memorial to the northwest Missouri congressman and his family will be located at the Jerry Litton Memorial Airport being developed by his hometown, Chillicothe, Mo.

Charley Litton made the announcement at a news conference on behalf of the Jerry Litton Family Memorial Foundation, Inc. Litton is president of the 14-member board.

Speaking for himself and his wife, Litton said public contributions of almost $120,000 to the memorial have gone beyond their expectations.

Litton said the exact form of the memorial has not been determied. One of the ideas is an agricultural library with rooms containing memorabilia of his son's life in Washington and a viewing room where visitors could watch tape recorded versions "Dialogue With Litton," a town meeting program which Litton made wide use of in his campaign for the U.S. Senate last year.

Litton; his wife; their two children; Paul Rupp Jr., a Chillicothe businessman and pilot, and Rupp's son were killed in a crash on takeoff from Chillicothe's present airport Aug. 3, 1976. The Littons were flying to Kansas City for an election-night celebration of his victory in the Democratic nomination.

Chillicothe voters recently approved a $500,000 bond issue to build a new airport, and the city has applied to the Federal Aviation Administration for a grant which would pay 90 per cent of the cost.

Litton told the news conference he is making arrangements through the office of Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., for an appointment with President Carter to seek federal support for the airport project.

It would be along U.S. 36, three miles east of Chillicothe, just across from the present airport and the scene of the plane crash.

Charley Litton said several prospective contributors have indicated they would increase the amount of the memorial fund when the site was selected.

An alternative had been the creation of a museum and library in the mansion house of the Litton Charolais ranch at the north edge of Chillicothe. The Litton family partnership sold the ranch in 1973 for $3.7 million to an Arizona ranch firm, which has not yet exercised its option to buy the house and grounds. A decision on location of the memorial had been delayed on the possibility that they might revert to the Littons.

Alley paving

The council approved the paving of an alley that runs south of the Sikeston Housing Authority project between South Stoddard and School streets.

The project was protested by owners of property on the south side of the alley, who thought the cost was too high for any benefits they might receive.

They also were not happy with what they believed was a project being forced upon them by the housing authority. The authority has asked for the paving.

Orginally, the project would have cost the property owners $9.50 a foot and the housing authority $8. The cost was different because curbs and gutters already had been installed on the north side.

A Compromise approved by the council will have the housing authority pay half the cost of the project, which will lower the cost to the property owners to $4.75 a foot.

A housing project resident who attended the meeting said the alley is now covered with coal cinders and the coal dust blows into the homes of the elderly.

Mayor Eric Piel said the city either had to pave or close the alley.

Subdivision

Church told the council that the George Williams family had met all the requirments of the city and that Mayor Eric Piel could sign the ordinance creating the subdivision of the family lot on North Ingram Street.

charging an amount equal to the actual cost of handling customers who pay late.

Members of the PSC staff, who engineered the sessions leading to the compromise, have declined to comment on the proposal until it is submitted to the commission. But they have acknowledged that the complete ban on late payment charges may not have stood up in court.

"At least we've gotten the commission to do something about these penalities," said Barvick, who supported the total ban. "The companies are making money on these penalties and we'll get some information on what the real costs are."

Part of the compromise calls for the commission to begin an inquiry into whether there is any relationship between the service deposit charged utility customers and failure of some customers to pay their bills.

In the meantime, utilities, would be restricted in the situations where they could charge deposits and they would also be required to return any deposit assessed with 6 per cent interest after a customer has established a year-long good payment record.

Barvick has raised questions about the lack of a ceiling on the amount of deposit new customers can be charged under the interim deposit guidelines.

The compromise calls for the deposit to be no more than twice what the utility calculates a new customer's average monthly bill will be.

Barvick has suggested that a ceiling of $100 be placed on new customer deposits, contending that should be enough and may even still be too high.

"It seems to me from a public relations point of view, if you're dealing with a new customer, demanding a deposit of $100 is almost unconscionable," he said.

Many utilities had balked at the provision allowing 21 days for customers to pay their bills. But Barvick indicated they have apparently agreed to that limit for most customers with the only change being a reduction to 16 days for customers who are billed every three months. The normal payment period is now about 10 days.

Retained in the compromise are:

--Prohibition against service disconnection on weekends or holidays or the day preceding weekends or holidays.

--Notification of proposed rate increases on the customer bill.

--A ban on estimated bills for more than three months in a row unless the utility has a legitimate reason for estimating the bill.

--Publication and distribution to customers of customer rights and responsibilities concerning utility service.

-Adoption of set procedures for notifying customers of plans to disconnect service with provisions for extension of payment periods in medical emergencies.

"We plan to monitor the operation of the rules to see how they work in practice," Barvick said. "If they don't, we'll petition the commission to make changes."

Chrysler price boost rivals Ford and GM

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers who buy a 1978 American-made car will be paying nearly $400 more on the average than for a similar 1977 model.

That prospect became certain Thursday when Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 U.S. automaker, announced it is boosting prices on its new cars by an average $372.

Chrysler was the last of the Big Three automakers to announce an increase of about 6 per cent. The three companies sell 98 per cent of all American-made cars in this country. American Motors Corp., which accounts for the other 2 per cent, has not issued a formal price list for all of its 1978 cars.

Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday it was boosting prices an average $387 or 5.8 per cent. General Motors announced an average $405, or 6 per cent, boost last month.

Chrysler said base vehicle prices are going up $243 a car on the average; options, $111, or 7 per cent, and shipping charges, $18, for a total $372.

Base price increases range from $46 for the Dodge Diplomat and Chrysler LeBarron four-door sedans to $501 for the two-door Chrysler New Yorker Brougham.

Based on Chrysler's new prices, the average 1978 Plymouth, Dodge or Chrysler car, including options, will carry a suggested retail price approaching $6,500, compared with slightly more than $6,100 in 1977. The average Ford and GM car will be priced above $7,000, not including taxes or discounts offered by dealers.

3 children found stabbed to death

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Police slogged through the muddy woods surrounding this suburban community today in hopes of finding the weapon used by an unknown killer who savagely stabbed three small girls in the back while they played within shouting distance of their homes on Sunday.

The bodies of Theresa Hogan, 8, her sister Deborah Anne, 10, and Ann Marie Brzeszkiewicz, 8, were found Monday by officers after an overnight search initiated by their frantic parents.

The usually tranquil subdivision is located about 12 miles south of Baltimore, away from major freeways or shopping centers. Some residents speculated that the killer, therefore, may have been one of their own neighbors.

Police, however, said they were virtually empty-handed so far in their investigation of the brutal murders. About 15 officers combed the scene today with metal detectors, while another 45 were assigned elsewhere on the case.

A telephone hotline was established for residents to call in any information they might feel relevant, such as accounts of past incidents of juvenile violence.

State Medical Examiner Russell Fisher said two of the girls had been stabbed about six times, and the third victim had more than a dozen knife wounds. Fisher said the murder weapon was probably a hunting knife with a blade at least five inches long.

The girls were found fully clothed and there was no evidence that they had been sexually molested, authorities said.

"We don't have anything," said Detective Sgt. William Chaplin of the Anne Arundel County homicide squad. "No clues, no motives, no weapon."

News of the slayings sent parents to Southgate Elementary School to gather up their children when classes were dismissed. School officials said usually a dozen parents will pick up their children but about 150 were waiting outside Monday afternoon.

"You just feel like clutching them to you," said one anxious mother.

"You always hear about it happening somewhere else, but it doesn't happen in your neighborhood," said Roger Westphal, whose children played with the Hogan girls.

There was no comment from Jacob and Judy Brzeszkiewicz, the parents of Anne Marie. But Sgt. Chaplin said the couple, who have another daughter and five sons, took the news very hard, and that a doctor was called to the house.

Richard Hogan, the father of the other two victims, said, "We're deeply shocked. We have no idea what caused it or anything."

Nobel physics, chemistry winners are announced

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Americans and a Briton won the Nobel prize for physics today and a Belgian was awarded the prize for chemistry.

The Swedish Academy gave the physics prize to John H. Van Vleck, 78, of Harvard University; his former student Philip Anderson, 55, of Princeton University and Bell Laboratories; and Sir Nevill F. Mott, 72, of Cambridge University in England.

The chemistry prize went to Ilya Prigogine, 60, of the Free University of Brussels. He is also director of the Center for Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics at the University of Texas.

The physics winners, who will share equally a $145,000 prize, were cited for research on the electronic structure of magnetic and disordered systems — work applied to development of the laser, advancement in the industrial use of glass, and in copper spirals for birth control devices.

Prigogine, who gets $145,000, was cited for contributions in the field of thermodynamics.

The physics award was announced behind schedule after three hours' deliberation by the academy, which was reportedly divided over two sets of candidates.

A statement by the academy cited the winners' "highly valuable contributions" in "large domains" of physics.

"This year's prize put the emphasis on their work concerning electron-electron interaction and the coupling between the motions of the electrons and the atomic nuclei in magnetic and disordered materials, where they ... have gone far beyond the conventional theories, with direct importance for experiments and technology," the academy said.

Van Vleck, a 78-year-old professor emeritus, has been called "the father of modern magnetism."

Mott, also a professor emeritus, was born in 1905. Anderson, once a student of Van Vleck, was born in 1923.

They will share a prize sum of $145,000.

The physics prize has been dominated by Americans since World War II. Last year Americans Burton Richter and Samuel Ting shared the prize for their discovery of a new heavy elementary particle.

The academy said Anderson, Mott and Van Vleck have added many new basic concepts to solid state physics that have led quickly to technical advances.

"The distance between fundamental results in basic research and technical applications is as a rule comparatively short in this field," the academy statement said.

"As an example, one can mention that Van Vleck's ideas have played a central role for the development of the Laser, whereas the technical development of amorphous materials like glass, which is now going on, would be unthinkable without Mott's and Anderson's contributions to the fundamental theory."

The academy said Van Vleck was the first to point out the importance of electron correlation — the interaction between the motions of the electrons.

As Van Vleck's student, it said, Anderson developed this concept to explain how local magnetic moments can occur in metals like copper and silver, which in pure form are not magnetic.

Mott and Anderson, working separately, have contributed to the knowledge about disordered systems, the academy said. These systems exist within materials whose atomic structures are irregular — a quality that makes it difficult to treat them theoretically.

Litton memorial site announced

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The father of Rep. Jerry Litton announced today a memorial to the northwest Missouri congressman and his family will be located at the Jerry Litton Memorial Airport being developed by his hometown, Chillicothe, Mo.

Charley Litton made the announcement at a news conference on behalf of the Jerry Litton Family Memorial Foundation, Inc. Litton is president of the 14-member board.

Speaking for himself and his wife, Litton said public contributions of almost $120,000 to the memorial have gone beyond their expectations.

Litton said the exact form of the memorial has not been determied. One of the ideas is an agricultural library with rooms containing memorabilia of his son's life in Washington and a viewing room where visitors could watch tape recorded versions "Dialogue With Litton," a town meeting program which Litton made wide use of in his campaign for the U.S. Senate last year.

Litton; his wife; their two children; Paul Rupp Jr., a Chillicothe businessman and pilot, and Rupp's son were killed in a crash on takeoff from Chillicothe's present airport Aug. 3, 1976. The Littons were flying to Kansas City for an election-night celebration of his victory in the Democratic nomination.

Chillicothe voters recently approved a $500,000 bond issue to build a new airport, and the city has applied to the Federal Aviation Administration for a grant which would pay 90 per cent of the cost.

Sell to buy back, an investors tactic

BY CROCKETT SCOTT

Schering Plough makes fascinating reading currently.

It's moving like a San Francisco streetcar going downhill. And in the view of a great many qualified SEC registered security analysts it just might continue to descend as we move closer to tax less selling. Recently it penetrated 30 on heavy volumes.

Schering Plough is significant to investors and traders alike, say market analysts, because it is fairly typical of numerous fine quality equities in which millions of stockholders have a sizeable loss for calendar 1977.

The impetus to sell (particularly for those who also have matching capital gains in other stocks, real estate or personal property which they have taken or plan to take before year's end) will be great: -- with the thought, possibly, of buying back 30 days after selling.

A Memphis stockbroker suggests that some holders obviously are taking their loss in Schering Plough now, so they can buy back later this year, after waiting 30 days.

Supporting this view is Schering-Plough's decline from the 44-45 area earlier in the year.

If tax loss selling has indeed started for Schering-Plough, it most likely will go lower, considerably lower; most SEC registered analysts from the central regions queried about the stock sensur.

Looking back a few years, Schering-Plough (or its forbears -- Schering Corp. and Plough, Inc.) traded up into the high eighties.

Thus seasoned investors and traders suspect that it is approaching bargain counter status. And when the shakeout has just about run its course, they anticipate a notable flurry of buying.

Another sometimes velatile issue which various St. Louis based SEC registered security analysts view as a possible buy in coming weeks is Teledyne.

This equity dropped below 50 in recent markets. High for the year was 74-75.

A one time high flyer engaged in electronics and avionics, Teledyne moved up to 80 last year, and then dropped 20 points or so rather quickly, for a short seller's delight: reversing itself in the period following, much as a yo-yo on a short string.

For the rich man with steel nerves and a distance runner's heart, Teledyne is considered an ideal vehicle to ride (by some SEC registered security analysts).

And you can play it short or long, dependent on its direction, they suggest; but be ready to jump off in a hurry if the stock fissles on the upside; or starts to brake quickly in a tumble.

Teledyne is rated B plus by Standard & Peer's.

Franklin Mint fits the traders category too. Presently trading around 8 on the big board and down from a year's high of 29-30, it is the kind of equity one might expect to be in high ground; -- particularly from its activity in producing inflation hedges such as medals, medallions, tokens and the like -- for commemorating historical events.

These limited quantity mintings are tailored for persons who want to save something for a rainy day.

But Franklin Mint moves like an Empire State Building elevator at times; and thus is a natural for the trader.

Vice Adm. William Read, commander of Atlantic Fleet Naval Surface Forces, said increasing numbers of Soviet submarines, destroyers and cruisers in the Gulf of Mexico and off the East Coast is an indication of the growing size, power and aggressiveness of the Soviet navy.

In July, Read said, the Soviet navy showed up in the Gulf with a task force of various types of ships armed with missiles and other weapons.

"It used to be a rare sight to see Russian warships on the high seas," he said. "Now we see them in every part of the globe — well armed and in large numbers."

The United States has 470 warships and 577 merchant ships, said retired Rear Adm. George H. Miller. The Soviets, he said, have 1,919 warships and 2,420 merchant vessels.

The United States would be at a grave disadvantage in a long war with the Soviet Union, he said, because the Soviet Union "is the side with the ships, the side with the ability to keep those ships afloat and moving, the side with the persistence to carry on, that usually wins the protracted struggle."

Policeman no match for cornered rat

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Policeman Steve Briggs' report told of a frenzied chase after a cunning suspect who tried to elude him with a "spectacular leap" and threatened to bite him.

But, after breaking his nightstick, chipping a tooth and calling in a backup unit, Briggs finally caught the rat that was cornered in a housewife's bathroom.

"The undersigned, while equipped with a nightstick, entered the bathroom," Briggs wrote in his report released Thursday. "At this time, the rodent was observed and the undersigned proceeded to attempt to destroy it."

"However, during the course of this officer's action, the animal, due to its size, was able to outmaneuver the undersigned. At one point, the rodent approached this officer in a very quick manner, and therefore in an attempt to avoid the possibility of being bitten, the undersigned quickly jumped up onto the bathroom sink cabinet.

"Meanwhile, the rat managed to jump onto a towel rack directly across from the undersigned, during which time this officer struck at the animal, and as a result broke his nightstick.

"At that point, the rodent made a spectacular leap across the bathroom and landed on the mirror, which was attached to the wall directly next to the undersigned's face.

"Then, in an attempt to escape the possibility of the rat then leaping on this officer's face or shoulders, the undersigned quickly leaned away from the animal, while at the same time attempting to strike it with what remained of the nightstick.

"Unfortunately, this officer lost his balance and fell off the cabinet and landed against the opposite wall of the bathroom. As a result of the fall, the undersigned struck the wall with both his elbows and his head, thus receiving bruises to both the elbows and as a result of the blow to the head the undersigned's upper front tooth broke.

"At that point, the undersigned requested a backup contact the scene in order to supply the undersigned with an additional nightstick in order to continue the battle.

"Shortly therefter, (another officer) arrived and the rat was destroyed."

Sell to buy back, an investors tactic

BY CROCKETT SCOTT

Schering Plough makes fascinating reading currently.

It's moving like a San Francisco streetcar going downhill. And in the view of a great many qualified SEC registered security analysts it just might continue to descend as we move closer to tax less selling. Recently it penetrated 30 on heavy volumes.

Schering Plough is significant to investors and traders alike, say market analysts, because it is fairly typical of numerous fine quality equities in which millions of stockholders have a sizeable loss for calendar 1977.

The impetus to sell (particularly for those who also have matching capital gains in other stocks, real estate or personal property which they have taken or plan to take before year's end) will be great: -- with the thought, possibly, of buying back 30 days after selling.

A Memphis stockbroker suggests that some holders obviously are taking their loss in Schering Plough now, so they can buy back later this year, after waiting 30 days.

Supporting this view is Schering-Plough's decline from the 44-45 area earlier in the year.

If tax loss selling has indeed started for Schering-Plough, it most likely will go lower, considerably lower; most SEC registered analysts from the central regions queried about the stock sensur.

Looking back a few years, Schering-Plough (or its forbears -- Schering Corp. and Plough, Inc.) traded up into the high eighties.

Thus seasoned investors and traders suspect that it is approaching bargain counter status. And when the shakeout has just about run its course, they anticipate a notable flurry of buying.

Another sometimes velatile issue which various St. Louis based SEC registered security analysts view as a possible buy in coming weeks is Teledyne.

This equity dropped below 50 in recent markets. High for the year was 74-75.

A one time high flyer engaged in electronics and avionics, Teledyne moved up to 80 last year, and then dropped 20 points or so rather quickly, for a short seller's delight: reversing itself in the period following, much as a yo-yo on a short string.

For the rich man with steel nerves and a distance runner's heart, Teledyne is considered an ideal vehicle to ride (by some SEC registered security analysts).

And you can play it short or long, dependent on its direction, they suggest; but be ready to jump off in a hurry if the stock fissles on the upside; or starts to brake quickly in a tumble.

Franklin Mint fits the traders category too. Presently trading around 8 on the big board and down from a year's high of 29-30, it is the kind of equity one might expect to be in high ground; -- particularly from its activity in producing inflation hedges such as medals, medallions, tokens and the like -- for commemorating historical events.

These limited quantity mintings are tailored for persons who want to save something for a rainy day.

But Franklin Mint moves like an Empire State Building elevator at times; and thus is a natural for the trader.

Vice Adm. William Read, commander of Atlantic Fleet Naval Surface Forces, said increasing numbers of Soviet submarines, destroyers and cruisers in the Gulf of Mexico and off the East Coast is an indication of the growing size, power and aggressiveness of the Soviet navy.

In July, Read said, the Soviet navy showed up in the Gulf with a task force of various types of ships armed with missiles and other weapons.

"It used to be a rare sight to see Russian warships on the high seas," he said. "Now we see them in every part of the globe — well armed and in large numbers."

Read and other naval officers spoke at the Southeast Seapower Symposium here Thursday.

The United States has 470 warships and 577 merchant ships, said retired Rear Adm. George H. Miller. The Soviets, he said, have 1,919 warships and 2,420 merchant vessels.

Rising crime statistics bring new sense of urgency to MBI concept

Special to the Daily Standard
By Don Keough
of the Columbia Tribune

JEFFERSON CITY — An increased capability to fight rising organized crime in outstate Missouri already is heading toward a major political battle, which some predict will be "a knockdown dragout with no holds barred."

As so often happens, few question the need for a greater state effort in the crime battle. But few also agree on how it should be done.

The center of the coming battle is the fear by many police bureaucracies that they will have to fight for their very organizational lives.

"Missouri Bureau of Investigation (MBI)" is the name that has come to be applied to a variety of proposals designed to create a greater statewide investigative effort for organized crime.

The MBI concept has languished around the capital for more than a decade, rejected by legislative session after legislative session. But rapidly rising crime statistics now reported from outstate Missouri has brought a new sense of urgency. In the drafting stage now are several MBI proposals which will be submitted to the next legislative session in January.

Rep. Gary Sharpe, D-Marion County, and Rep. Richard Hamilton, D-Pulaski County, are at work on legislation which would establish an MBI as a separate agency in the state's Department of Public Safety.

The Sharpe-Hamilton bill would have the MBI director nominated by the department director (now Kenneth Carnes, a former sheriff of Jackson County) and approved by the governor. The MBI director also would have to meet stringent educational and experience standards.

Traditionally, Republicans in the legislature have held out for the MBi to be governed by a bipartisan commission. They have argued, and are expected to argue again, that the sensitive work of directing a large scale investigation team should be removed as far as possible from control of the governor or from the control of a cabinet department head appointed by the governor.

Rep. Ron Bockenkamp, D-St. Francois County, expects to lead the legislative effort to reject a separate MBI organization in favor of greatly increasing the Intelligence and Investigation (I & I units of the State Highway Patrol. Curently, those units have about 24 men assigned either at headquarters or in field in assisting local criminal investigations, including drug work.

Atty. Gen. John Ashcroft will take another tack. He supports an MBI, but believes the agency should be assigned to the attorney general.

"The attorney general currently is the only elected official who has statewide jurisdiction and authority in consumer protection and antitrust," Ashcroft says. "The office also has the authority to assist local prosecutors in the prosecution of any crime when requested to do so by the local prosecuting attorney."

But Ashcroft stresues that some type of increased effort is needed and that should not be lost in a battle over where it will be placed in the bureaucracy.

"The state," Ashcroft says, "is handicapped in dealing with broad-based criminal activities and in dealing with major crimes occurring in outstate Missouri. A state bureau of investigation is certainly a promising response to this very serious problem."

Public Safety Director Kenneth Carnes leans toward establishment of an MBI under his control. But he says that position results not from any desire on his part to enlarge his responsibilities but rather from recognition of "political realities."

Carnes explains that local sheriffs and local police departments persistently have opposed increasing the investigative capability of the highway patrol. "It just seems to offend local police departments. They don't want to see any infringement on their autonomy. They fear a growth of state police powers."

Carnes believes that politically the legislature will accept an MBI in the Department of Public Safety but that it will heed the "local law enforcement people back home" and resist enlarging the highway patrol.

Carnes notes that sime drafts of legislation provide that the I & I men assigned to the patrol will have first preference on jobs with the MBI. The possible transfer of his intelligence and investigation officers is just one reason why a separate MBI is opposed by Col. Al Lubker, the patrol superintendent.

"Col. Lubker will just have to remember what the basic purpose of the highway patrol has been organized for," Carnes says, "and that is to enforce the traffic laws."

In the state's organization table, Lubker is a division director under Carnes. "Somewhere along the way Col. Lubker and I will have to sit down and discuss this," Carnes says. "I would hope the department will go to the legislature advocating one positoin only."

Bockenkamp, a former intelligence officer in the St. Louis City police department, believes creation of a separate MBI would only be establishing another over-lapping police jurisdiction. "We have enough of those now," Bockenkamp said.

Bockenkamp notes that most MBI legislation calls for the first-year hiring of from 10 to 15 investigators. "That's fewer than we have in the patrol right now," Bockenkamp said. "So what would this accomplish except to geive Ken Carnes a new toy to play with. The only logical solution as I see it is to increase the investigative manpower of the patrol."

Sharpe sees the pending legislative battle as a long and difficult one. "I'm not married at this point to any final design," Sharpe said. "Undoubtedly there will be compromises and changes. But I think the important thing is that we do something rather than nothing."

Brazilian leader rejects call to lower coffee prices

LONDON (AP) — Brazil's top coffee executive has rejected calls to reduce high coffee prices and said his country was determined to sell coffee at rates that will bring the income needed to develop its economy.

Speaking to a packed chamber at the annual council meeting of the International Coffee Organization, Camillo Calazans, president of the Brazilian Coffee Institute, turned down a Colombian proposal that coffee prices be reduced to promote consumption.

He also said current high coffee prices came not so much from the Brazilian frost of 1975 but from 15 years of underproduction by other coffee-growing nations.

He said that if Brazil had not supplied the coffee to plug this deficit, world markets would have been undersupplied. That would have resulted in prices soaring long before they did.

He said in 1965 Brazil had accumulated stocks totalling 65 million bags of green coffee, but because it plugged annual deficits since then, the Brazilian Institute was left with only 1.2 million bags in reserve on Aug. 31 this year. A bag of coffee weighs 132 pounds.

"In 1976 after the frost Brazil had produced six million bags, but was able to export 17 million, thus exhausting its reserves," Calazans told the council.

Calazans countered suggestions made Monday by Arturo Gomez Jaramillo, General Manager of the Colombian National Coffee Growers Federation. Jaramillo said high coffee prices had led to a slump in consumption of 10 to 15 per cent, and this was mainly because other producers had not heeded Colombia's call last year for a ceiling on coffee prices. That would have avoided the loss of millions of coffee drinkers around the world who are switching to other beverages, the Colombian argued.

Calazans said: "Towards the end of last year, when prices began to attain fairer levels, one could discern pressure from the importers to counter this movement. One country especially (Colombia) called for a freeze on prices. If Brazil had succumbed to these pressures, it would have lost $1 billion by doing so and other producer countries would have lost three times that amount."

The Brazilian put the blame for the fall in world coffee prices over the last few months on speculative maneuvers aimed at harming the interests of the producing nations. He said the situation was now critical but there was little Brazil could do as it had virtually no coffee reserves left.

Carter gets poor marks on small-business issues

NEW YORK (AP) — Tird of mere lip service, an association of independent business people last year decided to keep a report card on the promises by the two major presidential candidates.

The group, the National Small Business Association, persistently extracted from each candidate his views on small-business issues, such as correcting what was felt to be unequal treatment versus big business.

The first report card, on Jimmy Carter of course, is in, and it appears the President didn't pass. "No substantial progress" was marked beside 7 of 11 issues measured.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest [illegible] unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

Planning for prince's visit seems a bit daft

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Prince Charles is coming to town and the pressures of protocol have driven the British consul general to talking to litterbins.

It's a question of the schedule.

"One of the first things we have to be careful about is that the timing is right," said Douglas J. Brown, a member of the Order of the British Empire. "It has meant going over the route beforehand and trying to assess how long it will take."

And to better gauge the time the prince will spend chatting with the crowds, Brown has bowed to trees and talked to litterbins along the tour route. That might sound a bit daft, but certainly not to Brown, who must make sure that Charles sticks to a busy itinerary.

The 28-year-old heir to the British throne will arrive in St. Louis Friday, Oct. 21; he'll be in the city about six hours before flying to Atlanta. While here, the prince will visit the Arch, attend a reception at the courthouse, and then a luncheon. Afterwards he makes a special visit to the McDonnell Douglas Corp. Brown says the prince is "very keen" on modern technology.

St. Louisans, who seldom have a chance to mingle with royalty, might have difficulty with the princely titles. To his friends, he's simply called Charles. To others, he's his royal highness Charles Philip Arthur George, Knight of the Garter, Knight of the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall and Duke of Rothsay, Earl of Carrick and Baron Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, Personal Aide-de-Camp to the queen, Colonel-in-Chief of the Royal Regiment of Wales, Colonel of the Welsh Guards. He's also a commissioned officer in the Royal Navy and Air Force.

"The element of pomp and ceremony is very attractive, and I think you Americans sometimes miss it," he said. "I think one of the reasons you have so many other parades that we don't have--such as those, what do you call them, Shriners?--is they tend to be a kind of substitute for the pomp and ceremoney which we provide for royal visits."

Not everyone who wants to greet the prince personally will get the opportunity. Again, it's a question of the schedule.

The 50,000-member organization concedes the President has three years in which to pull his marks up to a graduation level, but they want him to know they are watching him — and Congress too.

Feeling that the very largest [illegible] unions and big government have grown at the expense of the independent sector, the association sought from Carter last October a promise that the growth of small business would be pushed.

Carter responded with this message: "It will be the goal of my administration to have the growth rate of small business exceed the growth rate of big business and government." The organization was elated.

Planning for prince's visit seems a bit daft

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Prince Charles is coming to town and the pressures of protocol have driven the British consul general to talking to litterbins.

It's a question of the schedule.

"One of the first things we have to be careful about is that the timing is right," said Douglas J. Brown, a member of the Order of the British Empire. "It has meant going over the route beforehand and trying to assess how long it will take."

And to better gauge the time the prince will spend chatting with the crowds, Brown has bowed to trees and talked to litterbins along the tour route. That might sound a bit daft, but certainly not to Brown, who must make sure that Charles sticks to a busy itinerary.

The 28-year-old heir to the British throne will arrive in St. Louis Friday, Oct. 21; he'll be in the city about six hours before flying to Atlanta. While here, the prince will visit the Arch, attend a reception at the courthouse, and then a luncheon. Afterwards he makes a special visit to the McDonnell Douglas Corp. Brown says the prince is "very keen" on modern technology.

St. Louisans, who seldom have a chance to mingle with royalty, might have difficulty with the princely titles. To his friends, he's simply called Charles. To others, he's his royal highness Charles Philip Arthur George, Knight of the Garter, Knight of the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall and Duke of Rothsay, Earl of Carrick and Baron Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, Personal Aide-de-Camp to the queen, Colonel-in-Chief of the Royal Regiment of Wales, Colonel of the Welsh Guards. He's also a commissioned officer in the Royal Navy and Air Force.

"The element of pomp and ceremony is very attractive, and I think you Americans sometimes miss it," he said. "I think one of the reasons you have so many other parades that we don't have--such as those, what do you call them, Shriners?--is they tend to be a kind of substitute for the pomp and ceremoney which we provide for royal visits."

Not everyone who wants to greet the prince personally will get the opportunity. Again, it's a question of the schedule.

Soviet cosmonauts fail in bid for space linkup

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts failed to link up with an orbiting space laboratory today in a major disappointment for the Russians at the start of their third decade of space exploration.

The Soviet news agency Tass said flight commander Lt. Col. Vladimir Kovalenok and flight engineer Valery Ryumin were unable to dock with the Salyut-6 space station and were preparing to return to earth in the Soyuz-25 spacecraft after little more than one day in orbit.

Tass gave no indication what caused the docking failure. "Because of some deviations from the planned docking regime, the linkup operation was cancelled," Tass said.

The failure was the latest in a series that have dogged the Russians' second generation of manned spacecraft.

The Soyuz-23 mission a year ago was aborted after the spacecraft failed to complete a docking maneuver. In the interim, Soyuz-24 successfully completed a 19-day mission after linking up with the Salyut-5 space lab.

Soyuz-25 was launched Sunday from the same pad at the Baikonur space center from which Sputnik, the world's first man-made space satellite, opened the space age on Oct. 4, 1957.

"It's the beginning of the third decade of the space age and it's going to be a working decade," Kovalenok said as he climbed aboard the spacecraft. "There's a lot of work to be done."

He and Ryumin were assigned to dock on to the space laboratory sent into orbit on Sept. 29 and then move aboard her for a program of experiments.

Their specific tasks were not announced, but Kovalenok told a televised news conference before they took off: "Ours is a simple goal — to learn as much as possible about our earth so that we can contribute to making life on earth better."

Tass said the cosmonauts carried with them a copy of the new Soviet constitution adopted Friday.

Western experts speculate that the flight may also include a walk in space or some other such space spectacular. In addition to the 20th anniversary of the first space flight, the Soviet Union on Nov. 7 is celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

It is the first manned Soviet space flight since the Soyuz-24 cosmonauts linked up with an earlier space lab, Salyut-5, last February. That mission lasted 19 days and included photography and scientific observations.

Salyut-5 was destroyed by radio signal from the earth on Aug. 8 after 16 months in orbit.

The United States has not sent up a manned space flight since the joint Soviet-American flight in July 1975.

The Soviet Union launched its first manned space ship with Yuri Gagarin aboard 16 years ago on April 12, 1961. Since then 34 Soviet cosmonauts have gone into space, but four of them were killed on their return flights.

USDA may allow bone bits in processed meat

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bits of bone the size of ground pepper and odd scraps of meat may soon find their way into bologna, sausages and hot dogs.

The Agriculture Department wants to allow bony material from ribs, backbones and other parts of slaughtered animals to make up 20 per cent of the meat portion of processed meats.

But the plan, which will take effect after the public is allowed to comment, will require labels that tell consumers just what they're eating.

The regulations will allow bones and the hard-to-remove meat clinging to them to be ground up and forced through sieves with tiny openings.

Large pieces of bone will remain behind, but the meat, marrow and "connective tissue" plus small bits of bone will survive the sieve.

The new proposal would allow up to 3 per cent of bone in the reclaimed meat product. If the maximum of 20 per cent of meat product was used to make a pound of salami, for example, about one-tenth of an ounce of bone would be included.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, who announced the plan Wednesday, said she expects it will be controversial.

"But if people are adequately informed as to the nature of the product, they can make a rational choice on whether or not to buy it."

A year ago, the department proposed a similar regulation, which would have refered to the additives as "mechanically deboned meat."

The new plan calls, instead, for the labels to read "tissue from ground bone."

"'Mechanically deboned meat' is not an acceptable title," said Ms. Foreman. "It is not meat. We have redefined it as a meat food product."

Richard Lyng, president of the industry-supported American Meat Institute, called the labels inaccurate and said it "seems to be a deliberate attempt to make the product unattractive."

The Agriculture Department canceled its earlier proposal after a federal judge issued a preliminary injunction against it.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant said then-Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz failed to consider "the possible gastroenterological side effects which may result from frequent ingestion of bone particles."

He also cited high levels of Strontium 90 that could be contained in bone particles and possible long-range effects of the fat content of the mechanically deboned meat.

Break-in trial set Oct. 26

KENNETT — Trial for George E. Eidson of St. Louis, accused of taking $134,000 in merchandise during burglaries at two Cape Girardeau stores, has been set for Oct 26, in Dunklin County Circuit Court.

Eidson was granted the change from Cape County Sept. 19 after Second division Circuit Judge A.J. Seier upheld a motion by his attoroneys contending that pretrial publicity would prejudice a jury in Cape County.

He is accused of two counts of burglary and stealing in connection with break-ins at Pind's Jewelry and Hecht's Store in November and December of last year.

Meanwhile, a ruling on a request for a change of venue on another burglary charge against Eidson in Illinois is pending before a St. Clair County Circuit Court judge at Belleville. Eidson's attorneys there have asked for a change to Randoph County at Chester, Ill., over objections of the prosecution, st. Clair County circuit clerk's office said.

Eidson originallyy had entered a plea of guilty to the burglary charge at Belleville, but a judge refused to accept the plea and ordered that he stand trial. The judge ordered that the trial be set for the Sept. 12, docket, but the request for a change of venue was entered in larte August, the clerk's office stated.

One of the earliest magazines, established in 1699, was called "The History of the Works of the Learned."

Soviet grain sale potential termed good

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Soviet agriculture expert says there is great potential for increased sales between his country and the United States if officials keep politics out of the trade.

Dr. Vladimir G. Sheremetev, assistant to the agricultural counselor for the U.S.S.R. in Washington, said it was ridiculous to tie politics with trade because the Soviet Union sees the human rights issue from a difference perspective.

Sheremetev said the human rights issue should be handled by international organizations such as the United Nations.

He criticized the Jackson-Vanik amendment which would have granted the U.S.S.R. most favored nation status in exchange for loosening its immigration policy for Jews. The Soviet Union refused the condition and the advantaged trade status was turned down. Among other things it would have reduced import duties.

"We cannot afford to enter your markets now because the duty rates on our goods are so high," the Russian agriculture expert said. Although the Russians market tractors in the U.S., the duties on spare parts are much higher. He said it is now cheaper to bring in a tractor and tear it down to get the extra parts.

Sheremetev said the Soviet Union has started a major modernization in his agricultural sector that could provide a huge market for American technology.

Dear Sir:

The 33rd Annual Cotton Carnival sponsored by the American Legion, Henry Meldrum Post No. 114, Sikeston, Missouri, held in American Legion Park September 19-24 was a tremendous success.

We atttribute this success to the cooperation of the Downtown Merchants, to every resident of the bootheel area who attended and to the usual clean appearance of the midway of the Rose City Rides, here for the 33rd consecutive year.

To all those organizations who set up stands and ran them in a cooperative manner. To Billy Newman and the Hosey Family who provided the best in Country Music on stage every night. To all those who patiently waited when the parade had to be rescheduled. To radio stations KSIM and KMPL for their assistance during the inclement weather and to See-Mor Cable TV for televising the parade for the first time.

The Sikeston Police Department and Civil Defense Officers patroled our grounds every night and to both the Sikeston newspapers for giving us good publicity.

We want to take this opportunity to say "Thank You" to everyone involved in the success of our 33rd Annual Cotton Carnival, and trust you will join us in looking forward to next year, when we hope to have an even bigger and better COTTON CARNIVAL.

Yours very truly,

Glenn McDlellan, Grounds Chairman

I am very pleased with the Daily Standard — I have run several classified ads and I find you very accurate, very polite to talk to on the phone—

P.S. A copy of this letter has been mailed to Washington--

Mr. President Sir. I am writing this letter for a lot of kids nationwide. And also to see if there is a way to help them. I live in a small community in Southeast Missouri. During the months when our small children are in school they sometimes stand in freezing rain; and thunderstorms waiting for a bus which is sometimes late. These small children some of which are as young as four years need some type of shelters. Something to keep them from freezing while standing in freezing rain when the windchill factor is forty below. Sometimes the rain pours for days. And the children get wet.

This isn't just in Sikeston, but as I said nationwide. There would be a lot of work in building these shelters. But then there are a lot of idle people walking around. But then there is the question of money. But I'm sure there are programs such as HUD, Job Corp, and a few others with a few extra funds. The shelters are needed.

These aren't something we can do without. The children in head start need a headstart on the elements of the winters ahead. I remember when I was six years of age if my brothers and sisters missed the bus when everything was blanketed in white snow when the buses couldn't get through we walked five miles to school. Mr. President. These children need help.

Mr. Charles Blanton, Jr.

Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Sir:

The 33rd Annual Cotton Carnival sponsored by the American Legion, Henry Meldrum Post No. 114, Sikeston, Missouri, held in American Legion Park September 19-24 was a tremendous success.

We atttribute this success to the cooperation of the Downtown Merchants, to every resident of the bootheel area who attended and to the usual clean appearance of the midway of the Rose City Rides, here for the 33rd consecutive year.

To all those organizations who set up stands and ran them in a cooperative manner. To Billy Newman and the Hosey Family who provided the best in Country Music on stage every night. To all those who patiently waited when the parade had to be rescheduled. To radio stations KSIM and KMPL for their assistance during the inclement weather and to See-Mor Cable TV for televising the parade for the first time.

The Sikeston Police Department and Civil Defense Officers patroled our grounds every night and to both the Sikeston newspapers for giving us good publicity.

We want to take this opportunity to say "Thank You" to everyone involved in the success of our 33rd Annual Cotton Carnival, and trust you will join us in looking forward to next year, when we hope to have an even bigger and better COTTON CARNIVAL.

Yours very truly,
Arthur Bruce, Commander
Wm. B. Pinnell, Carnival Chairman
Glenn McDlellan, Grounds Chairman

I am very pleased with the Daily Standard — I have run several classified ads and I find you very accurate, very polite to talk to on the phone—

Thank You
Mrs. Thelma Oliver
